'Show-Me' mules get shown off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just down the road from the White House, not a hoot and holler from the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial, there's a new mule corral where some oldtimers from Missouri are getting a chance to show off their favorite animals.

Leaning on the top rail of the corral, two tanned Missourians admired their handsome sorrel teams hitched to rubber-tired wagons.

"There's just something about those damn mules that you like," mused 74-year-old C. W. Heath of King City.

The four mules were brought here Wednesday for a few days at the Smithsonian Institution's summer Festival of American Folk Life, because, as one of their owners said, "folks ought to see what a real Missouri mule looks like."

Stubborn and ornery as a Missouri mule Heath and the other team's owner, G. E. Chipman, 67, of Perry, Mo., think maybe mules have outgrown that reputation.

For one thing, the men said, Missouri mules traditionally have been bigger and brawnier than the kind George Washington bred on his Virginia farm 200 years ago. Missouri mules, go the legends, have had no equals for at least 150 years.

"A mule can eat anything — felt hats, shoes, and in the Civil War they claimed one ate a wagon," offered Jack Hackethorn of Columbia, Mo. "And they're smarter than horses."

Hackethorn, Heath and Chipman are familiar sights at the Missouri State Fair. Hackethorn is superintendant of mules, while the "World Champion Mule" award went to one of Chipman's animals at last year's fair.

The intelligence of mules has been debated — and cursed — for generations, and the argument wasn't settled among the mule lovers leaning on the Washington corral. Horses can be trained well, too, admitted Chipman and Heath, but there's something about a mule.

"If a mule's caught in barbed wire, he'll stand still, while a horse might jump around and saw his hoof off," said Hackethorn.

As for being stubborn — maybe they used to be, said Chipman. But that was when people used them to plow, pull wagons and do a lot of the farm work, long before tractors took over the jobs.

Now, most mules, like those of the Missourians, are raised for show and are pampered. And they are expensive.

"They're not on the stock market," said Chipman, who admitted selling a string of seven mules recently for $1,250 each.

Acceptance speeches tonight

Carter chooses Mondale

NEW YORK (AP) — Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter acted today to complete the Democratic ticket by designating Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his choice for the vice presidential nomination. Carter's decision will be ratified at tonight's closing session of the Democratic National Convention.

Asked why he had settled on Mondale, Carter said he had found "a remarkable compatibility between his stands on the issues and my own."

Mondale described Carter as "an uncommon man, terribly gifted, committed, experienced, ready, but, above all, a good man and I'm proud and honored to be a part of this team."

Carter kept his choice a secret until the moment, a few minutes after 10 a.m., EDT, when he strode into the Royal Ballroom of the Americana Hotel to make his announcement.

It was the only suspenseful moment in a convention that belonged totally to the man from Plains, Ga., whose capture of the nomination the night before represented one of the most remarkable coups in American political history.

About an hour before Carter left his suite for the press conference, he received a telephone call from President Ford, who is fighting to be the Republican nominee whom Carter will run against.

According to White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, Ford told Carter he hoped the campaign could be conducted on "a high level" and "I look forward to a good contest this fall."

The vice presidential selection process was drawn out over 30 days during which Carter said he changed his mind three times.

"This has been, as you can well imagine, one of the most difficult decisions I have had to make," he told the news conference. "But I have absolutely no doubt that this is the right decision."

Carter called the Minnesota senator "the best person to lead this country if something should happen to me." He added that Mondale has "a very clear concept of what the presidency should be."

Mondale arrived at the Americana during Carter's news conference. He was accompanied by his wife, Joan.

Carter said Mondale had suffered from mild hypertension, but that "since he has been taking medication he has had no problem."

Carter said Mondale's medical records had been examined by a doctor and they showed nothing unusual for a 48-year-old man.

Mondale said he expects Carter to be president for eight years. "I'm not taking this job with the expectation of becoming president," he added.

Two years ago, Mondale made an exploratory run at the presidency but dropped the idea when he failed to generate widespread support.

Carter said that in the last few days "I have had very serious allegations" made against the six senators on his final list but that no evidence was found to support the charges.

After the delegates ratify Carter's choice of Mondale they will hear acceptance speeches from the two nominees nd then adjourn.

Carter said he would recommend that future conventions recess for 30 days after the presidential nominee is chosen to give him time to make a careful choice of a running mate.

Mondale, regarded as a liberal with strong support from organized labor, always was considered one of the leading prospects.

The others on Carter's list were Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, John Glenn of Ohio, Henry Jackson of Washington, Frank Church of Idaho, and Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois.

In the hour before his news conference,

Missouri 58 to 13 for Carter

NEW YORK (AP) — Eighty per cent of Missouri's 71 delegates joined in ratifying Jimmy Carter's predetermined nomination as the Democratic party's candidate for president Wednesday night.

However, the celebration by the Carter supporters was tempered by the lingering bitterness among the antiabortionists because they couldn't get floor discussion on the abortion plank in the party's platform.

Missouri cast 58 of its 71 votes for Carter on the only roll call needed to affirm what had been known for weeks, that Carter would win on the first ballot.

U.S. Sen. Thomas Eagleton was among a cross-section of politicians named to the committee to inform Carter of his nomination, a traditional formality.

Eagleton repeatedly told interviewers here this week he has no regrets over what happened four years ago.

Missouri's Pro-Life group had nothing but regrets Wednesday night, casting seven votes for anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack. Four other Missouri votes went to Morris Udall and two to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California.

Three of the McCormack votes were in protest against the refusal of the convention to permit debate on the abortion issue. She had come to the convention with four Missouri votes committed to her.

"They might announce he (Carter) won by acclamation, but not with my vote he didn't," said state Sen. Lawrence Lee of St. Louis, chairman of the Pro-Life caucus in the Missouri delegation.

Lee said he thinks Carter's refusal to remove the abortion plank from the party platform "will be disastrous." That plank puts the party on record as opposing efforts to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court decision on abortion by constitutional amendment.

"I don't think he realizes how many Pro-Life Democratic Americans there are and how important this is to them. But he'll find out the hard way.

"All the human rights were heard from one end of this hall to the other, except the right to life."

However, Harold L. Holliday Jr., a Carter delegate from Kansas City, disagreed.

"It's not that important an issue," Holliday said. "Inflation, unemployment, education, . . . they're all more important. It will have a minimal effect come November, and I think Jimmy Carter is tailor-made for Missouri.

"Missouri is traditionally a Democratic state, and this is a candidate whom Democratic leaders will have no trouble embracing."

Holliday predicted Carter would win Missouri by more than the half-million vote margin former President Richard Nixon rolled up in the state four years ago.

"People are looking for hope and a return to some kind of stability," Holliday said. "Jimmy Carter offers that hope."

James Spainhower, state treasurer and delegation chairman, said he thinks the Missouri delegation "is very happy with Carter."

'Endangered' status for bald eagle?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bald eagle, which overcame the opposition of Benjamin Franklin to become the national symbol of the wild, new United States of America, may soon be listed as an endangered species in the 48 contiguous states.

Interior Department officials are proposing that the bald eagle be listed as endangered in 43 states and as "threatened" in the other five.

The eagles have been shot, poisoned and chased from their traditional nesting grounds by the bulldozing progress of modern America, Interior Department officials said Wednesday.

"In some areas of the country the noble bird can't even hatch its own eggs. Pesticide residues have so contaminated its body that egg shells become thin and break when it tries to hatch them," said Keith M. Schreiner, associate director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Animals listed as endangered are protected by law from being killed, placed into commerce or possessed, except with government approval. A southern subspecies of bald eagle has been on the endangered list since 1967.

Interior officials said that in states where eagles are classified as a threatened species, controls can be either as stringent or more relaxed than in endangered-species states, depending on local conditions.

The bald eagle once ruled supreme in the United States and was chosen as the centerpiece of the seal of the fledgling new country in 1782. It was generally felt that the bird was a natural choice because its habitat was virtually the entire United States, although Franklin himself preferred the turkey.

Under the proposal by the Interior Department, the eagle will be protected in all states except Hawaii, where it is not a native bird, and Alaska, where it is considered plentiful in wilder areas.

"Only a single nesting pair of bald eagles remains in New York State where they used to be common and this pair didn't produce any offspring last year. The 33 pairs in Maine produced only 14 offspring," according to Schreiner.

The department said there are an estimated 10,000 nesting pairs of eagles in Alaska, but only about 700 pair in the rest of the country.

Hardwick re-elected SADC head

Robert Hardwick, Route 3, manager of the American Electrical Industries plant on west Highway 50, Monday was re-elected president of the Sedalia Area Development Corp. (SADC) at the group's first annual meeting in the Municipal Building.

The SADC was formed about a year ago to help provide financing for construction of the McGraw-Edison Co. warehouse facility. It has since spurred the development of a local industrial park and participated in other efforts to boost local industrial and economic development.

Bill Mills, Walnut Hills, president of the Missouri State Bank, was elected vice president. Elected to the SADC board of directors were E.G. Adams, president of the Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust Co.; H.W. Harris, president of the Third National Bank; Don Braden, vice president of First State Savings; and City Councilman David Curry, chairman of the council economic development committee.

New Economic Development Director James Hamm was named to replace his predecessor, John Hequembourg, as SADC general manager and was also appointed to the group's board of directors. Hamm was also named the group's secretary-treasurer and his office secretary, Mrs. Deborah Williams, was named assistant secretary-treasurer.

Reagan sees same theme in campaign

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Ronald Reagan said today the Democratic party's Carter-Mondale ticket will be "waging the same old ideological battle" this November as Democratic candidates before them.

Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate, announced a few minutes earlier in New York that Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota was his choice for the vice-presidential spot on the ticket.

Reagan, the Republican presidential challenger trailing President Ford by 33 delegates, said Carter's choice of Mondale was "right in the Democratic leadership philosophy." He said it showed Carter was devoted to the Washington establishment.

"We all knew it would happen," he said when asked for his reaction to Carter's nomination as the Democratic presidential candidate.

"Liberalism is pretty much out of fashion. They will be waging the same old ideological battle," he said.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, shook hands with a dozen supporters at Newark International Airport before leaving for a day of meetings with Republican delegates in Harrisburg, Pa.

Expectant parent classes lead the way

Enjoyable birth experiences sought by couples

By KAREN FLANDERMEYER
Living Today Editor

"Anything to reduce the unknown reduces the feelings of fear" is the philosophy behind expectant parent classes begun in April.

"Fear creates tension and tension makes for more pain," says Maurine Lane, 1614 West 18th, one of three registered nurses along with a mother and guest lecturers who guide, on a voluntary basis, the six-week course for expectant parents.

The classes are held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. every Wednesday for six weeks at the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabiliation Center. New classes are begun every three months, on the first Wednesday of April, July, October and January. One hour is devoted to classroom work and the other to exercises.

The classes are approved by the obstetrical committee, chaired by Dr. Elmer Van Dyke, and the hospital staff whose chief is Dr. John Brazos.

Nursing has been a part of Mrs. Lane's life since she was 19 years old. Only recently, three and a half years ago, she became a licensed registered nurse and since that time has worked in the obstetrics department at Bothwell Hospital. Mrs. Lane, along with Sue Felten, R.N., instructor in the registered nurse program at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, began the class because "we thought there was a need for it. We hope we can keep it going," Mrs. Lane said.

Bev Wilkerson, R.N. in Bothwell's intensive care unit who worked with the University of Missouri-Columbia Medical Center's OB classes before coming here, and Sheila Marsh, a mother, also contribute their time to lead the classes.

A total of 21 couples participated in the session that began in April and 20 area couples are signed up for the class which began July 7. "We like to try to get them (expectant couples) between their fourth and sixth months," Mrs. Lane said. A minimal fee of $7.50 is charged to cover the expenses of materials, including films, print-outs and a manual for each set of parents. The fee covers both members of the couple and "most husbands come with their wives," Mrs. Lane said.

Subjects discussed during the classroom part of the sessions include changes in pregnancy, different discomforts and how to alleviate them; a session on how to recognize labor led by Mrs. Jeanne Walton, OB supervisor; when to go to the hospital and what to take; a session on labor and delivery attended by an obstetrician who has a popular question-answer period following his talk; care of the mother; care of the baby, including a bathing demonstration; and the different types of contraceptives available. Also, during the six-week class, a tour of the obstetrics department at the hospital is scheduled.

Sue Felten, R.N., leads a discussion on baby's growth during pregnancy

Teaching the women "how to relax" is an important aspect of the exercise portion of the classes, Mrs. Lane said. The R.N.s help the women learn to concentrate on something — even if it's just a spot on the wall or on breathing itself — to get their minds off the pain and to relax their muscles. For another exercise, the women lie on their backs on the floor, are instructed to think of something peaceful and learn to contract separate muscles while relaxing the rest of their body. "With muscles tensed, or contracted, the uterus also contracts and pains hurt more," Mrs. Lane explained.

Throughout the exercises, the husband, called a "labor coach," helps his wife. For low back pain during labor, he learns where to rub his wife's back, applying pressure at certain points to counteract the pressure of the baby's head. "Counterpressure from the outside makes it hurt less," Mrs. Lane said. The husband also can lead his wife in breathing techniques to ease discomfort during labor and encourage her performance verbally.

The women, especially early in their pregnancies, are also taught exercises to help build their thigh and abdominal muscles, and muscle stretching and relaxing techniques.

Since Mrs. Lane works with the couples in the classes as well as through the actual birth experience, she said the women who have taken the classes "seem to be more at ease and relaxed from the knowledge gained." A saddle block and local block are the two most commonly used anesthesia during labor, she said. Mrs. Lane defined natural childbirth as the "most pleasant birth experience possible."

Husbands are not allowed in the delivery room at Bothwell Hospital, she said, but a short time after delivery, the husband can see his wife and new baby on the way to their rooms.

Mrs. Lane discouraged expectant mothers from believing all the stories relatives relate of their birth experiences. "Relatives can really frighten the mother-to-be," she said.

Mrs. Lane stressed the importance that the patient and her husband follow the directions of obstetrics nurses and doctors during labor and delivery. The situation may change, she said, making previous instructions invalid. "A little knowledge can be dangerous," she said.

But on the whole, the couples who have attended the classes seem to have "a more enjoyable birth experience" which, according to Mrs. Lane, is the measure of the program's success.

Butz calls for government action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has formally asked for government action against a processing facility in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, which he says is being used to funnel excess foreign beef into the U.S. market in violation of import law.

Butz made his request Tuesday in a letter to Commerce Secretary Elliott Richardson who is chairman of the government's Foreign-Trade Zones Board.

Imports of frozen or chilled foreign beef are subject to import restrictions under a 1964 law designed to protect American cattlemen from foreign meat being dumped excessively on their market. A series of "voluntary restraint" agreements with major suppliers, including Australia and New Zealand, has been used in New Zealand, has been used in recent years to keep imports in bounds without triggering mandatory quotas.

But under other regulations, such meat is allowed to enter a specified foreign trade zone, be processed and then relayed into the U.S. market. The processing allegedly involves dicing or other physical treatment so that the meat qualifies for exemption under the import rules.

Butz said that the Puerto Rican plant has been operating since last October and that there are plans to expand it and to add another processing facility.

In his letter to Richardson, Butz asked that the board exclude the processing operation from the Mayaguez trade zone and to launch an immediate investigation. He said the meat being processed is from Australia and New Zealand.

"Limitations of the importation of such meat are needed to assist in the recovery of the domestic livestock industry which for the past 2½ years has suffered from low returns to producers and rising costs," Butz said.

Cotton 'fair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's cotton crop is in "mostly fair" condition and is in the best shape in Oklahoma and Texas, says the Agriculture Department.

By July 11, development of the crop was lagging behind a year-earlier in many areas, including Alabama and Georgia, the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather review.

Can't eat all and stay slim

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I need to lose a lot of weight. We have both faced the fact that what started as a middle-aged spread has ballooned into a problem of major proportions.

Since we have decided to do it we would like to do it and get it over with. We thought rather than diet for months to get rid of our fat that we would go on a low carbohydrate, high protein diet. I have heard that all one really has to do is eliminate all carbohydrates for about a week or two then keep-the carbohydrates down to a very low level. One can eat anything else-and still have the fat just melt away.

Before we start on this diet we thought we would like to know for certain that it would not damage us in any way. I recall that there was a lot of fuss in the papers about the diet when it first came out. Will you tell us if it is safe for us to follow or not?

DEAR READER — I don't recommend it! Despite the exaggerated claims made in the promotion of the diet you speak of there is no magic way you can eat all you want to eat and stay slim — unless the food on the diet is sufficiently unappealing that all you want of it contains a limited number of calories.

The initial dramatic weight losses with such diets is not because the person loses fat at all. It is because the body loses its normal water content and is dried out. When you severely restrict your carbohydrate intake you cause the kidneys to eliminate an excess amount of salt from the body and with that goes a lot of water. This initial weight loss from dehydration will level off in a couple of weeks.

However the sudden loss of water — not fat — in the first week, coupled with emptying out the digestive system is enough to hook the unwary individual into thinking that a miracle has taken place and some will stay with the diet until they have lost actual-fat because they have really been eating less calories. Almost all the diet frauds you see highly advertised depend on tricking you with that initial water loss and, of course, on that human failing of wanting success without pain, riches without work and a slim attractive body while gorging on high-calorie foods.

When you lose water with one of the diet gimmicks and the scales show you lost pounds just remember that as soon as you quit the diet and regain the water your body needs for normal health that you will regain the pounds.

I have mentioned repeatedly that I do not approve of crash diets. I know you are impatient but it took years to get the way you are. It will take a long time to lose weight safely and sensibly, to regain your former physical appearance. A pound of fat contains about 3500 calories. Your job is to use the excess calories stored as fat while you are taking in less calories. A well-balanced, sensible diet combined with adequate regular physical activity is your best bet for both your health and your appearance. (NEA)

Pettis County crops damaged by drought

The current drought in the Pettis County area has brought about a definite deterioration in pasture and hay fields and will soon be affecting row crops, according to Dick Dalton, manager of the Pettis County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

Row crops such as corn, milo and soybeans will be affected, Dalton said, if they do not receive rain in the next 10 days.

About 88 per cent of the wheat in Missouri has been harvested, according to a report Monday by the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The hot, dry weather provided good conditions for the wheat harvest, the report said, but has left soybean and corn crops badly in need of rain.

Dalton echoed that report, noting that he was surprised that Pettis County wheat production was not reduced more by freezes in late April and early May.

Most area farmers did not even try second plantings of row crops in fields where wheat had been planted, Dalton said, due to the dry weather. Most of those who did make second plantings have seen the seed stay underground without germinating.

Soil moisture declined in the state except in the western areas and statewide was 51 per cent short Monday, the reporting service said. Seven per cent had surplus moisture, while the remaining 42 per cent only had adequate moisture.

The majority of hay and clover-timothy fields have already been harvested a second time this year, with the majority of these fields reported in only fair to good condition.

Two more persons are sentenced in theft case

The last two of three persons charged in connection with a series of thefts in Pettis County in late 1975 and early 1976 were sentenced in Pettis County Circuit Court Wednesday afternoon.

Anthony Wayne Collins, 19, Route 2, was sentenced to two years in the State Department of Corrections. He was convicted June 16 by a Pettis County jury of second-degree burglary in connection with the Jan. 18 burglary of CB World. The jury found him not guilty of stealing in connection with that burglary.

His brother, Kevin Lee Collins, 18, also of Route 2, was sentenced to two, concurrent three-year terms on similar charges in connection with the Jan. 30 theft of several guns from the home of Marvin Rollins, Route 1, Smithton. He pleaded guilty to both charges on May 19.

Marine S-Sgt. Roy E. Dugas, 25, formerly of the Homestead Trailer Court, was sentenced Monday in Boone County Circuit Court in Columbia to two, concurrent three-year terms " in connection with the Rollins burglary. He also pleaded guilty to both charges.

Dugas, who admitted to at least three more burglaries than he was charged with, was placed on probation for five years after he serves an additional 45 days by Judge Frank Conley. In granting probation, Judge Conley cited Dugas' previous clear criminal record, his Marine Corps record and the fact that he had experienced marital problems. He added, however, that in approving probation he was probably going "against all the rules and statistics." Dugas was cited by various officials as the ringleader in the theft ring. Judge Conley said "...it defies the imigination that you were led by anyone else in the commission of this or any other crime...the obligation was there because you are 25 years old and you had the responsibility to say 'No, this is wrong.'"

"Another factor relates to the development of some relationships in this matter as a result of your leadership position as a recruiter (in Sedalia) and the fact that you may have used this...," Judge Conley said.

Judge Frank Meyer denied probation for Anthony Collins, noting that "...it is important that a man who is sentenced by a jury...serve that sentence."

Probation for Kevin Collins was granted by Judge Meyer on the basis of his cooperation with authorities in attempting to recover the stolen merchandise and his willingness to make restitution for the items not recovered. Judge Meyer also noted Kevin Collins was a trustee at the county jail since his arrest and was willing to testify in any further cases resulting from the investigation into the theft ring.

Letters written by both Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, Route 2, parents of the Collins brothers, and by M. Craig Cassing, retained attorney for the brothers, charged that Dugas was given unusual treatment in exchange for his testimony against Anthony Collins.

Dugas was the only member of the ring to admit participation in all five burglaries which Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said were solved with the arrest of Dugas and the Collins brothers last February.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming denied that any deals were made in exchange for testimony. He said that while some prosecutors file on every charge possible, it is his practice to file only one charge "when the crimes are related." He added that filing additional charges often results in concurrent sentences, making them, in effect, meaningless.

Picketing at Fair doesn't last long

Picketing at the entrance to the Missouri State Fairgrounds, which ended almost as abruptly as it began Tuesday, had no effect on work at the fairgrounds, Fair Director Jerry Herrmann said Wednesday.

Herrmann said the incident was technically not a picket, but rather an "informational banner" designed as a "notification or harrassment tactic" in response to the issuance of a non-union subcontract to Mid-Mo Plumbing and Heating Inc.

Sedalian Robert Schelb, representing Plumbers' Local No. 8, Kansas City, was the lone picketer. He left the entrance to the fairgrounds at about 10 a.m. Tuesday after nearly 2 ½ hours of picketing.

A tile contractor who walked off the job Tuesday but returned Wednesday was the only other walk-out connected with the picket, Herrmann said.

He said he was not notified why the picket was called off.

Tulsa man files for venue change

A Tulsa, Okla., man charged with stealing property valued at more than $50 filed a petition Tuesday afternoon in Circuit Court for a change of venue.

Johnnie Wayne Smithee, 29, was arrested in Warsaw April 3, 1975, on a Pettis County warrant. He allegedly took 65 used truck tires from Jim's Tire Service, South Highway 65, on April 1, 1975.

Smithee's petition stated that he could not get a fair and impartial trial here because of "unusual and undue" publicity of his case in the news media.

Smithee is free on $3,500 bond.

Charges may be filed against two Sedalia men

Two Sedalia men remained in the city jail at noon Thursday pending the possible filing of charges following their arrests Wednesday afternoon.

David L. Pettis, 19, 1210 West Sixth, was arrested at his home at 4:36 p.m. Wednesday and held on charges of burglary and stealing.

Claude Eugene North Jr., 21, 1708½ South Sneed, was also arrested at Pettis' home and charged with possession of a concealed weapon.

Recovered at the time of the arrests was a .38 caliber pistol believed stolen sometime Monday from Pettis' landlord, Samuel J. Keith, 1210 West Sixth, while Keith was in the hospital. Also recovered was a stereo turntable reportedly stolen from Patsy Woodson, 301½ West Seventh, on June 5.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said that a decision would be made Thursday afternoon concerning the charges.

Marijuana sale charges filed

A Warsaw man was bound over to Circuit Court for trial on felony charges of selling a controlled substance, marijuana, following his preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Wednesday morning. Leo James Barnett, 20, was arrested in Ionia June 30 for allegedly selling marijuana for $15 to a State Highway Patrol undercover agent on April 12 in Sedalia.

Barnett remains in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

WAFB airman sentenced on marijauana charge

An airman from Whiteman Air Force Base was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary Wednesday in Circuit Court after he pled guilty April 8 to a felony charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Kenneth Joseph Schetzler, 21, Knob Noster, was arrested by Sedalia police early Oct. 20 in a van at Second and Massachusetts. He allegedly had about 20 pounds of marijuana in his possession in the van, along with a jar of what was thought to be marijuana seeds.

Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer said he would take under advisement an application for probation pending a ruling by the U.S. Air Force on whether or not to discharge Schetzler.

Schetzler began serving the sentence in county jail Wednesday pending completion of Air Force hearings and the probation hearing.

Earthquake kills 223 in Indonesia

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — An earthquake on the island of Bali, hitting far from the usual tourist spots, has killed 223 persons and injured 2,350, Bali Gov. Sukarmen said today.

He said the Buleleng district on the island's northern tip suffered the worst damage from the quake Wednesday, with 90 per cent of the homes in the district wrecked. Many persons, mostly children, were badly injured by falling buildings. Hospitals and emergency clinics were jammed with victims.

Seririt in central Bali was almost totally destroyed and 10 school children died there when a school building fell, Sukarmen said.

The quake, which registered 5.6 on the Richter scale, struck far from the popular tourist areas along the southern coast.

Collection of benefits proves costly

A Sedalia man who collected unemployment insurance benefits for a seven week period while he was employed and being paid wages was convicted of fraud to obtain unemployment insurance last week.

According to information supplied by the State Division of Employment Security, Frank Orr, 159 Summer, was convicted July 7 in Magistrate Court of fraud to obtain unemployment insurance. He was fined $50 and had to make full restitution to the Division of Employment Security for the $595 collected.

Both Gary Fleming, prosecuting attorney, and William R. Giles, manager of the local Division of Employment Security office, told The Democrat-Capital that this is the first such case prosecuted within the last three years.

Individuals collecting unemployment insurance are required to file claims weekly. Periodic checks are made of employers' reports of wages, according to Giles, in an effort to determine whether unemployment beneficiaries are also collecting wages.

"When we determine there has been an overpayment," said Giles, "we send this information to Jefferson City." From the state office, some overpayment cases are recommended for prosecution and forwarded to the local prosecuting attorney.

Giles said other cases have been sent to the state office in recent years. However, Fleming said the Orr case is the first he has been notified about.

Law suit says auto dealer was fraudulent

A $7,900, two-count damage suit was filed Tuesday afternoon in Circuit Court.

Johnnie L. Allred, of Johnson County, alleges that he suffered "false and fraudulent misrepresentation" when he purchased a 1972 used car from the Phillips Motor Co., Route 3, Sedalia. An employe at the company, Logan M. Phillips, was also named as a defendant in the suit.

The suit claims Allred bought the car for $1,475 on Feb. 9, 1976. It says the odometer on the car read 27,011 miles and alleges that the car was previously sold by Byron Lane on Oct. 22, 1975 to Lotspeich Motors, Inc., Warrensburg, with a mileage statement of 95,699 miles.

The suit further alleges that Lotspeich then sold the car to the defendants on Dec. 2, 1975, with a mileage statement of 96,850 miles.

Allred is seeking $400 in the first count for the difference in reasonable market price between the lower and the higher mileage figures. The second count seeks $7,500 in punitive damages.

Youth is injured; ambulance employes get into argument

A 14-year-old Sedalia youth suffered minor injuries when he was struck by a car while riding his bicycle at Broadway and Thompson Ave., about 10:11 p.m. Wednesday.

James R. Haase, 1306 East Ninth, was treated and released at Bothwell Hospital for lacerations to his forehead, chin and left arm.

Police reported that Haase was riding his bicycle east on Broadway when a car driven by Mark D. Walters, 17, 640 East Tenth, struck him while making a turn onto Thompson. Police reported that neither could see the other when the accident occurred. Haase did not have any lights on his bicycle.

While Haase lay in the street awaiting medical attention, an argument took place between two ambulance companies' represenatives. An employe of Pettis County Ambulance Inc. was first to arrive on the scene and began to administer first aid to the boy while police notified his company to send an ambulance.

Meanwhile a Sedalia Ambulance Service ambulance arrived at the scene. An argument then took place and the Haase boy was accidentally kicked. He was not injured by the kick. He was taken to the hospital in the Sedalia Ambulance.

Mrs. Hermerding named recorder

SWEET SPRINGS — Gov. Christopher S. Bond today announced the appointment of Mrs. Ruth Hermerding, route 2, a Republican, to fill the unexpired term of Werner Hermerding, her late husband, as Saline County recorder of deeds.

Hermerding was killed in an auto accident July 6. He became Saline County recorder in May, 1975, when he was appointed by Gov. Bond to fill the unexpired term of Charles M. LaRue. He had been campaigning for re-election this fall.

Mrs. Hermerding, a lifelong resident of Sweet Springs, retired from teaching in May.

☆ Convention

Carter called each of the other men on his list to notify them they had not been chosen. He did not tell them his choice was Mondale.

Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, who had presided over the impeachment hearings two years ago and who placed Carter's name in nomination, had been on the list of vice-presidential hopefuls until he asked Carter to drop him from consideration.

Carter won the nomination Wednesday night. He received 2,468.5 votes on the first and only ballot, well over the 1,505 needed for nomination.

After the formality of the roll call, the convention voted to deliver the nomination by acclamation. James Earl Carter Jr., 51, had defeated 14 rivals to clinch the nomination.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, who battled throughout the primary season but released his delegates before the roll call, finished second with 329.5 votes. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who entered late into the contest but beat Carter in several primaries, got 70.5.

Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey offered Carter in nomination as "a leader with a vision" who would return the party to the White House for the first time since Republican Richard Nixon beat the Democratic nominee, Hubert H. Humphrey, in 1968.

"My friends," Rodino said, "these are no ordinary times, and we cannot settle in these times for an ordinary leader."

What do kids think of busing? 'It's no big deal'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's dark as 12-year-old Mark Jump hurries toward his neighborhood school. There, he will join about 30 other youngsters on a yellow school bus which will take them across town.

Mark is white. His new school is in a predominantly black neighborhood.

About the same time, Babbette Norfleet, 12, leaves her home in a housing project on the other side of Louisville. Shortly, she will board a bus for a 25-minute ride through the rolling Kentucky countryside to suburban Middletown.

Babbette is black; Middletown is not.

Mark and Babbette are among 22,600 students, half of them black, who participated this past school year in the massive and often wrenching social experiment called forced busing. There were 119,000 students enrolled in the school district.

Their movements were dictated by the federal courts, which found Louisville's school system to be unconstitutionally discriminatory.

Busing is one of the most emotional and controversial experiments in the nation today. It turns law-abiding parents into rock-throwing rebels. It disrupts public budgets. It swings elections.

But what does it do to the kids?

Mark recalls his fear nine months ago when a rock crashed through the window of his school bus, showering the children aboard with broken glass. His friend was cut.

"I was afraid," Mark said. But as time went on, he added, the fear lessened. He now says it's his parents who are frightened, not he.

"I like it here better than my old school. The building's much newer and the teachers aren't so old fashioned," the youngster said.

Interviews with other children on Louisville's buses brought much the same reaction. For most kids, busing is no big deal. There are no traumas, no nightmares, no instant geniuses, no unexplained dunces. Just kids.

Adults are a different matter.

One white Middletown student, 8-year-old Kendra Bryant, wrote a letter to the Louisville Courier Journal, saying, "I think busing is good because I've gotten to meet two new friends I would not have met before."

The Bryants received a flood of abusive telephone calls and hate letters as a result of Kendra's letter.

Gwen Bryant, Kendra's mother, said one of the letters was signed by the Ku Klux Klan and another by the National White People's Party. At least one of the callers identified himself as a member of the KKK.

Kendra, unconcerned about the names she was called in the hate mail, said, "You should have seen the writing on those letters. They write worse than first graders."

"What parents don't understand is that we're all the same inside," said 11-year-old Dorris Holloway, a black student at Martin Luther King Jr. Elementary, the same school Mark attended.

"Even if you're red or green or purple, it'll still be the same. You have a heart, a brain, a nose and eyes. You're just a different color outside."

Doris, who expects to be bused outside of King's district to a school in a largely white area this fall, said she looked forward to it as a chance to get to meet new people and "observe how they live.

"Parents should give busing a chance to see if it works. If it's bad, they can do something about it. But if it's going on fine, they should leave it alone."

Doris' best friend, Dianne Guess, 12, is looking forward to what she calls an "adventurous experience."

"Your mother and father will probably tell you that they're (white students) different from you and have different ways, but you should go and see for yourself. Sometimes your mother and father could be wrong."

"The children have adapted much faster than I expected," said Evelyn Ashkenaz, a student counselor at King. "Their problems are the small petty ones of childhood.

"Somebody snatched somebody else's pencil. There may be a quick tussle, but its all forgotten by three o'clock. But when the child goes home and his parents ask what happened in school, its all blown out of proportion.

"I have one child, whose mother insisted she resume taking medication (a tranquilizer), the doctor said she no longer needed. The little girl said to me one morning, 'You know Mrs. Ashkenaz, my mother needs the pills, not me.'"

Bernard Minnis, associate superintendent for human relations in the Louisville system, said many of his department's programs are directed toward parents.

"You can't just dismiss the parents and their feelings, that's why we spend a lot of effort on the parents in the community ... not trying to sell desegregation, but trying to curb the overt behavior toward the school and the children.

"We do not deal with preparing people so much for busing itself, but to ease the strain caused by desegregation and busing.

"It's really unfair to ask if these programs are working. Over-all, we could say within our own gut feeling that we've seen change but we can't really point out statistics and say this is so.

"We just know that the people we've worked with aren't out there throwing rocks."

Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, a psychologist and professor emeritus at New York City College, says parents who violently demonstrate against busing, "inflicting their children with their own racial bias ... are examples that tell the detriment of segregated schools."

He compared the need for federal intervention in desegregation with earlier cases requiring federal intervention when parents resisted innoculation of children.

"These parents are the product of segregated schools," Clark said. "They don't even understand what they are inflicting on their children."

Not all Louisville parents are manning the protest lines. At Middletown, where 76 black students were bused in daily from Lousville's inner city, Principal Josephine Trowel says the parents have been an asset.

Mrs. Trowel, a black, said the parents "have leaned over backward" to make the new students and their parents feel welcome.

School officials also believe the chronic truancy of the past year maybe eased next year, too.

In the past school year, about one-third of the 300 white students scheduled to be bused into King were truant. "They just never showed," said Principal William Horan.

School officials say about 4,000 children were transferred from the public school rolls to parochial or private schools at the beginning of the 1975-76 school year, and an additional 2,000 are truant. Most of these lost students are attributed to the antibusing feeling among parents.

Dr. Marie Doyle, the system's director of public information, says she thinks that many of this year's truants and transferees will return to class next September.

Experience in some other major school districts desegregated since 1970 shows that antibusing violence, protests and parent resistance will eventually decline.

Charlotte, N.C., began its fifth year of court-ordered busing last September with only one picket.

Walter DeVries of Duke University said a recent poll showed 2 per cent of 563 North Carolinias thought busing was still a serious issue.

"Nobody wants to go back to the way things were," DeVries said.

Nine sugar companies cited for price-fixing conspiracy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An antitrust suit against nine sugar companies was filed here Wednesday by the state attorney general's office alleging a conspiracy among the firms to fix prices.

The suit contends that the companies conspired to fix and raise the list price of refined sugar to eliminate, reduce and prevent the granting of allowances on the price of refined sugar and to fix and stabilize the effective selling price of refined sugar to customers.

Kermit Almstedt, chief of the antitrust division of the attorney general's office, filed the suit in U.S. District Court for Western Missouri here.

The suit seeks treble damages and injunctive relief.

"We're talking about $3 million worth of purchases by state agencies over the past 20 years," Almstedt said as he estimated the damages. "If there were a 10 per cent overcharge during that period, we're talking about $300,000, and trebled, it would be nearly $1 million.

The suit also asks the court to permit the attorney general's office to represent all cities, school districts, hospitals and other political bodies in the state which have purchased refined sugar over the last 20 years.

"The purpose of this lawsuit is to not only put an end to such anti-competitive conduct but to recover for the state and its institutions the excessive prices paid," said Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

Missouri's suit is linked to about a dozen others which have been filed by other states and private concerns. The suit is expected to be transferred to U.Sm District Court for the Northern District of California where other western states have filed similar actions.

Missouri's case rests on a federal investigation which began in 1974 into skyrocketing sugar prices. Antitrust charges stemmed from the federal investigation, and the firms charged pleaded "no contest" to the accusations and settled the matter out of court.

The companies named are the Great Western Sugar Co., Consolidated Foods Corp., California and Hawaiian Sugar Co., Holly Sugar Corp., American Crystal Sugar Co., Amalgamated Sugar Co., Utah-Idaho Sugar Co., Imperial Sugar Co., Amstar Corp. and National Sugarbeet Growers Federation.

Symington declines debate with Litton

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rep. Jerry Litton has again criticized Rep. James Symington for declining to debate in their race for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Symington was the first candidate to arrive at Penn Valley Community College Wednesday night and left before Litton or Kansas City Mayor Charles B. Wheeler, another candidate for the seat, had spoken.

"Tonight was the last night I saw as an opportunity on the schedule for Jim Symington and I to debate the issues between now and the election," Litton said.

"The bet was that he wouldn't show up," Litton said. "It never occurred to me that he would speak first and then walk out."

Symington is the son of retiring Sen. Stuart Symington.

During his speech, Rep. Symington praised Jimmy Carter's promises to reduce the number of federal agencies. "There are too many agencies in existance that we really don't need," he said.

Wheeler said he would not support any candidate who opposed party reform. He has been critical of county party officials who are paid by candidates. "If you can reform the Democratic party nationally then it is theoretically possible to do it in Missouri," he said.

Preus bows out of case

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Jacob A.O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, has disqualified himself from consideration of a heresy case that led to the formation of Concordia Seminary-in-Exile here.

The Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen was suspended in 1973 as president of the Concordia Seminary in Clayton for preaching false doctrine.

Dr. Preus said, "It is a well-known fact that I have been publicly identified as one who has been in disagreement with Dr. Tietjen throughout the controversy in the synod. I have come to the conclusion that any further action ought not to be decided upon by myself."

The case has been turned over to Dr. Theodore F. Nickel, third vice president of the synod.

Dr. Nickel takes the case on appeal from a decision by the Rev. Oscar A. Gerken of Cape Girardeau, first vice president of the Missouri District, finding Tietjen innocent.

Dr. Tietjen's suspension triggered a revolt by a majority of the faculty and students. Originally the dispute focused on differences in Biblical intepretations.

How much pork in pork and beans?

Weighty issues being discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Democrats are debating in New York, the real weighty issues are being discussed this week in Washington.

For instance, how much pig should be in a can of pork and beans? And how much turkey in a frozen dinner? And how many servings does a jar of instant coffee make?

It's the 61st annual Weights and Measures Conference, a gathering of some 500 state and local metrologists from around the country, whose main concern is to make sure consumers aren't ripped off when the country switches to the metric system.

"The primary function of the meeting is to adopt model laws that have been agreed on by those weights and measures officials," said Fred McGehan, spokesman for the group. McGehan said that after the four-day conference, the officials return to their states' weights and measures departments and recommend that such legislation be passed.

If the measurement officials have their way, shoppers will no longer have to guess what they're eating when they buy mystery meat cuts like "patio chops," "breakfast steak" and "paradise roast."

They're recommending that meat cuts have standard identities, such as roast, shoulder, bone-in and boneless.

In considering another model law, the officials are discussing whether the percentage of meat should be listed in frozen dinners.

Another recommendation would require companies to list the number of servings in such products as a jar of instant coffee. Other problems being discussed are softwood lumber. After all, a 2-by-4 is really $1^1/_2$ inches by $3^1/_2$ inches. The officials also are pondering uniform labeling of antifreeze and the method of sale for sod and turf.

McGehan said most of those at the conference feel the United States will have converted to the metric system by the mid-1980s.

McGehan said the officials expect that by early next year, a U.S. Metric Board will have been appointed by the president. "Its job will be to coordinate the voluntary changeover from the present measuring system to metric," McGehan said. "This will include a public education system."

Asked what a shopper will do when he is faced with kilograms when what he wishes to purchase is a pound of salami, McGehan said, "Take a kid along. They're now teaching metric in the schools."

Walkers for peace to pass here

Participants in the Continental Walk for Disarmament and Social Justice will pass through Sedalia July 23, members of the project's Mid-Missouri Steering Committee announced Friday.

The walk is a grassroots disarmament project sponsored by more than 20 national peace, religious and civil rights organizations.

Residents are welcome to join the approximately 25 long-distance walkers when they pass through Sedalia. Participants left San Francisco Jan. 31, and plan to arrive in Washington, D.C., Oct. 16.

Walkers will trek through Warrensburg and Knob Noster before arriving here, and will proceed to Otterville, Tipton, California, Jefferson City, and numerous other cities.

Four of the long-distance walkers are Buddhist monks sent by the Japanese peace movement. They are presenting a letter to mayors of towns visited from the mayor of Hiroshima calling for the support of nuclear disarmament.

Olympics first for Gov. Carey

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey would rather have attended a sendoff for 177 Olympians than host the Democratic National Convention, Secretary of State Mario Cuomo told the athletes.

"Down there, they're trying to make points not by throwing balls through hoops but by blowing air through microphones," he told 177 American athletes on their way to Montreal Wednesday.

Blown hairstyle

By ERMA BOMBECK

Speaking of my hair . . . you may remember that in the last episode, I opted for the Brillo pad look, which followed the Grace Kelly syndrome (I was blessing children in supermarkets), which came after the wig that got dandruff and died.

Don't get me wrong. I loved the little tight curls close to my head, it's only when they started to grow out that I looked like an aging pepper plant.

That's when I went for the Blow n' Go. In my mind, I saw it as a coiffure with the maintenance of a self-cleaning oven. You just set a few dials, and zip, you were ready for the ball.

This isn't exactly true.

My blow n' go blew too much and went too far.

To begin with you need one of those Dorothy Hamill haircuts, which look terrific but you get this intense urge to ice skate. Secondly, there are two definitions of blow.

There's blow (verb), to send forth a current of air with force, as a wind that blows gently through the chimes.

There's also blow (noun), a sudden unexpected shock, an unfortunate or calamitous happening.

My blow was definitely an unfortunate and calamitous happening. I laundered my hair and borrowed my son's hair dryer.

Without any warning whatsoever, that dryer sucked up my two pitiful strands of hair, nearly pulling my feet off the floor. It was only by a miracle that I was able to kick the plug out of the wall, thus saving my entire face from being devoured by the appliance.

"That dryer nearly killed me," I said to my son.

"You used a dryer for that measly amount of hair? For that you could just hang out of the no-draft in the car. What do they call it?"

"A blow n go.'

"Go where?"

"Any place you want to go."

"You're kidding. You look like a guy I know in the Marine corps. He's too embarrassed to go anyplace."

When my husband came home he looked at me and said, "What happened to your hair?"

"I blew it," I said.

He shook his head. "I'll say."

Burns' Channing revive dizzy routines on tour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm so excited. My sister just had a baby."

"That's nice. Is it a boy or girl?"

"I don't know yet. I can hardly wait to find out whether I'm an aunt or an uncle."

George Burns was feeding the straight lines and getting the same mad answers. This time his dizzy partner was not Gracie Allen but the wide-eyed blonde with the haystack hair, Carol Channing.

Burns and Channing are teaming again on a summer tour that takes them to such places as Dallas, Atlanta, Westbury, N.Y., and Highland Heights, Ohio. It is a reunion for the pair, who played 14 weeks of dates together after Gracie retired.

"Carol and I did Gracie's routines then, but nobody realized it," says George. "This time we'll tell the audience what we're doing."

They were rehearsing for the tour one warm summer day at George's house in Beverly Hills. A couple of pros, their delivery at the first script reading was almost letter-perfect.

Afterward the pair reminisced about Gracie, whose presence could almost be felt in the Maple Drive house. The comedienne retired from performing in 1956 and died in 1964.

"Gracie is a deity in our house," said Miss Channing. "I don't think most people realized what a superb actress she was."

"I always said that Gracie was an Irish actress when I first met her," added Burns. "She remained an actress, and she had the greatest concentration of any performer I've ever known.

"To Gracie there was no audience, no footlights. That was just a fourth wall out there. She never looked at the audience, always at me.

"Carol works with the audience. She doesn't direct her lines at me but at the people. So I work to the people, too."

Miss Channing recalled another rehearsal with George almost 20 years ago. "Gracie watched us work together, and she approved," she said. "She gave me her blessing, and to me that was the greatest accolade I could ever receive."

"I want to tell you that Gracie didn't give her approval easily," said Burns. "She could be a very tough critic, let me tell you a story."

He related how in their early career Burns and Allen were playing Oklahoma City, where a critic wrote: "Gracie Allen is a great comedienne who will go places as soon as she gets a good partner." Neither mentioned the review until George mentioned over dinner, "Did you read that notice?"

"Pass the salt," Gracie replied.

Ever afterward, whenever George or Gracie didn't want to reply, the answer was, "Pass the salt."

Reunited

George Burns and Carol Channing, readying for a summer tour, practice a routine in Los Angeles. They worked together for a while in the '60s, after George's wife and partner, Gracie Allen, died. They'll do some of the same routines George and Gracie performed.

FBI continues to search for hijacker, $200,000

SEATTLE (AP) — It's almost too late to catch parachuting airplane hijacker D.B. Cooper, assuming he's alive.

Five years is the limit in which the antihijacking law can be enforced.

Five years will be how long it's been since since the hijacking when Nov. 24 rolls around.

D.B. Cooper was the name given by a man who paid cash for a Northwest Airlines ticket to fly from Portland to Seattle. Shortly after the Boeing 727 jetliner lifted off from Portland, he gave a stewardess a note.

"I have a bomb in my briefcase," it said.

Cooper ended up with $200,000 in cash. He parachuted from the jet's rear door somewhere between Seattle and Reno, Nev.

No one is sure whether Cooper survived the jump, which was made into a raging thunderstorm. No trace of him has been found.

But the FBI, extremely aware that the statute of limitations on the 1971 crime is about to expire, continues the hunt.

A spokesman says the FBI has a plan to try to recover ransom money if it is in circulation. It has been suggested that a reward of $5,000 should be offered to the first person who turns in one of the 10,000 $20 bills given to Cooper.

Serial numbers of the bills would be published around the nation under the plan, the spokesman said. Smaller rewards would be offered to persons who turned in bills later.

But, the spokesman said, the plan isn't being well received.

The FBI notes that even if Cooper beats the statute, he won't be able to go public. The Internal Revenue Service believes Cooper owes the government back taxes amounting to more than $218,000 on his plunder, including interest and penalties.

Cooper allowed his passengers to disembark at Seattle after he received money and four parachutes. Soon after takeoff, a cockpit light went on, signalling that the rear door was open.

The best guess is that he jumped somewhere over southwestern Washington. But extensive searching — and FBI interviews with thousands of people — have turned up nothing.

LABOR BOSSES BACK SKELTON AND GANT FOR CONGRESS

That's right! The United Auto Workers Union (UAW) is backing state senator Ike Skelton a Lexington lawyer and the Central Labor Council (COPE) is backing state senator Jack Gant an Independence lawyer!

The Kansas City Star stated that the labor unions will spend a hundred million this election year to elect congressmen and other public officials that will do their bidding. Our fourth district is composed mostly of non-union workers, retired people, farmers and small business and do we want a congressman representing us who is backed by labor bosses?

Strikes are the major cause of the cancerous inflation that is eating away the vitals of the free world and unless we remove this malignancy from our economic body, our free enterprise system will have Communism for its undertaker!

Every time a union strikes or asks for a pay raise, big business "caves in" which means we will pay more, buy less and more people lose jobs. The teamsters got a 33 percent raise; now how many of us get a 33 percent raise in income? What about the 7 million jobless people, how can union people ask for and always get higher pay? What the hell happened to the law of supply and demand?

The labor bosses are gaining control of all levels of government by unionizing public employees. Worse yet; three labor unions want to organize our armed forces and if they succeed they may be infiltrated by Communists and our own armed forces could take over the country overnight in a Latin American style coup! It's later than we think!

Folks, I don't want to sound like a Paul Revere but out of nine Democrats and two Republican candidates in the August 3rd primary election, I am the only one who has come out against the labor boss dictatorship that is more powerful than King George two hundred years ago. Please help me with your votes as my contributions are only 230 dollars. The income from my small farm is no match for the millions the unions are spending.

Growing Older

Dignity is an inherent quality

By LOU COTTIN

This year, as in years past, we older Americans will be bombarded by the word "dignity." Politicians will assure us solemnly that they want us to "live in dignity." Our ministers will brighten their sermons with references to the "dignity of graying hair." Social workers will assure us that everything they do for us will enhance our status as dignified Americans.

This should comfort us. We are poor. Many of us are ill, lonely and neglected. But "dignity" is what these kindly people want us to achieve and enjoy.

We thank them. But perhaps we should let these praters about "dignity" know that we are not being taken in by their pious protestations. We do not need them to evaluate either the level or the substance of our dignity. It is an inherent quality which comes from within us and from our life experiences. A person is dignified or he is not. Every American who has lived to age 60 and beyond is automatically a dignified person.

The source of our self-respect is the record of our performance as Americans over these many years. A lifetime of struggle is behind us. Wars which we fought have ennobled us, protected our country and its sacred institutions. Cities we have built serve as witnesses to our validity. Our children and our grandchildren carry the American dream forward because we made it possible for them to do so.

During our lives, no task assigned to us has been shirked. We have been good, efficient workers. We have been teachers and community leaders. Our very existence confirms our quality. It is impertinent for the young to assume that they can confer dignity upon us or withhold it from us.

Roget's Thesaurus informs us that the noun "dignity" means distinction, honor, decorum, nobility, repute. Every one of these synonyms describes us, the older Americans. Our distinction is clearly evident because of our service. Our honor rests on our performance as good citizens year after difficult year.

Now, therefore, let politicians understand this: Your vague promises about bringing dignity to our lives are meaningless words to us. From you we want practical help. Dignity we have. Comfort is what we need. Medical attention, at prices we can afford, is what we need. An end to discrimination against the aged is what we need.

Now, also let appointed officials, in the field of health especially, understand this: From you we want honest performance of your jobs. The nursing home scandals are your fault. Weaknesses in enforcement of hearing aid and optometrical and other health standards prove that you are indifferent to our needs. An insult to anyone of us seniors is an insult to us all.

Now, indeed, let the professional social workers who serve the elderly understand this: All your activities must begin with the acceptance of us as valid people. We are persons of stature. What you do for us is not a "favor." We have earned such benefits as you deliver many times over. Extend your heart to us and help us. Respect our dignity.

Now, additionally, let directors of senior citizen clubs understand this: We will not tolerate condescension. Do not think of your work as though you were "baby sitters" for "sad sack" oldsters. Don't segregate us. Don't limit our activities to recreations. We are not simpletons. help us to become involved in the broad political and social life of our communities. Most of us still have important contributions to make. Give us a chance to prove that we are still substantial citizens.

Don't limit our activities to recreations. We are not simpletons. Help us to become involved in the broad political and social life of our communities. Most of us still have important contributions to make. Give us a chance to prove that we are still substantial citizens.

In this, our country's Bicentennial year, it is heartening to announce, "We seniors reject passivity. It's beneath our dignity." (NEA)

St. Joseph's only policewoman

Lady cop still likes her job

By MARY HELEN BURROWES
St. Joseph News-Press
For The Associated Press

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Nearly two years ago, Brenda Elliott became St. Joseph's first policewoman.

She still has the distinction of being the only woman on the force and she still likes her job.

"There's always something new or a new twist to an old story," she said. "Even working inside at the desk can be fascinating, talking to people, trying to help them solve their problems."

Miss Elliott joined the force after receiving a degree in criminal justice administration at Central Missouri State University and then started 320 hours of basic training for the city's rookie policemen.

She has spent all her time working the 4 p.m. to midnight shift, which she said she likes because it is the busiest. Being single is an advantage, she said, because she doesn't have to face the daily problems of a family living on different schedules.

"I've been very lucky, too," she said. "Most things have worked out well for me. There haven't been many tough situations, times when I was afraid someone was going to get hurt. Those are the things that chill your blood, but I suppose that the close calls are good preparation for the time when something tragic could happen."

She sometimes works at police headquarters, answering calls or acting as a jailer, but most of her work is on regular patrol with a partner.

"Many calls can be handled over the telephone," Miss Elliott said. "Some people just want to know what they can do about a problem or just want to talk to someone. Sometimes it's necessary to keep the person on the phone until a police car can get there. It's amazing how just a little talk will help."

She appears to have gained the respect of her fellow officers.

"I frankly didn't think she'd make it at first," one veteran officer said. "The gaff she's had to take from the guys and from some of the public and, well, sometimes our language isn't what it should be. But she's a good officer. Maybe I shouldn't say it, but she's just like one of the men."

Supervisors have allowed her to handle a variety of touchy problems, such as molestations, possible rapes, racial disputes and juvenile cases, and Police Chief Glenn Thomas has assigned her to speak for the department at meetings of various civic, religious and educational groups.

In ranks

U.S. Air Force Col. (Dr.) Royce Moser Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Moser, Versailles, was elected a Fellow in the Aerospace Medical Association at that group's annual meeting in Miami, Fla., recently.

Col. Moser is presently chief of the Aerospace Medicine Branch, Education Division, U.S. Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base, Tex. He is a 1953 graduate of Versailles High School.

Moscow going to dogs

MOSCOW (AP) — Apartments are still crowded around Moscow, but more and more these days families are squeezing in a new friend, the family dog.

Dog owning and dog breeding are growing pursuits in the Soviet Union, and increasingly affluent Russians crowd the open-air Moscow pet market on Sundays, paying up to 80 rubles— $100 — for a pedigreed puppy.

At a hunting-dog show here recently, large red banners proclaimed a long-familiar slogan "The dog is man's best friend."

According to statistics published last year, 80,000 Muscovites own dogs, while 20,000 others breed pigeons and 2,500 others keep bees. Others own cats, rabbits, parakeets, fish, mice, chickens and hamsters.

The "dog boom" hit Moscow about five years ago, according to the newspaper Moscow News, and everywhere, "Dogs were happily digging up flower beds, lawns and sports grounds, scaring children and leaving quite lasting signs of their presence" in the streets.

Recently, though, the Moscow City Soviet has restricted most dog-walking to fenced-in "dog clubs," the newspaper said, where they can enjoy themselves without bothering anybody.

The hunting-dog show last month was a three-day affair in which 1,287 dogs were judged on their appearance, pedigree, offspring and certificates of hunting ability.

At the end of the parade marched a little blonde girl in a pink dress, looking about her doubtfully, carrying a furry toy dog.

When the crowd of onlookers saw her trudging along, they broke into the warmest applause of the day — for if there's one thing the Russians love more than dogs and prizes, it's little children.

Man from nowhere has taken the prize

Carter's quest for top reaches half-way mark at 11:15 p.m.

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — When he was governor of Georgia, he appeared on "What's My Line" and nobody could guess what his line was.

When he was governor of Georgia, his mother asked what he expected to do after leaving the state house and he said:

"Run for president."

"President of what?"

"President of the United States. And I'm going to win."

Today, Jimmy Carter was half way there, while many people in his party were still wondering what his line was.

He reached the half-way point at 11:15 p.m. (EDT), July 14, 1976, in the fourth day of the second week of the third century of the Republic and the 19th month of Jimmy Carter's quest, begun at ground zero.

It went this way Wednesday night, a sequence of events which somehow combined tedium, comedy and poignance....

At opposite ends of the arena, two widows. On the left, Jackie Kennedy Onassis in red. On the right, Ethel Kennedy in pink, with Teddy Kennedy. The announcement brings a warm, sustained ovation.

Had he lived and won, Bobby Kennedy would be finishing his second term now. Had it not been for Chappaquidick, Teddy Kennedy might now be....

At 9:10, Carter's name is placed in nomination by Rep. Peter Rodino, unknown beyond the pizza parlors of Newark, N.J., until he became a hero of Watergate. His eloquence goes unattended.

"Proudly I place before you the name of Jimmy Carter," he concludes, and the crowd cheers and the state banners wiggle, but the effect is one of preordained ritual.

Among the seconders, Rep. Andrew Young, first black man elected to Congress from Georgia, says:

"I am ready to lay down the burden of race and whether you know it or not, Jimmy Carter comes from a part of the country that has done just that."

A moment to remember, a black man from the South nominating for president a white man from the South....

The name of Ellen McCormack of Merrick, N.Y., is placed in nomination and the crowd sinks into a new level of indifference.

Archibald Cox, another hero of Watergate, rises to nominate Mo Udall of Arizona and the cheers for a loser seem more spontaneous and more reluctant to end than the cheers for the winner.

"If this goes on much longer I might accept the nomination," says Udall from the platform.

Udall releases his 348 delegates, a graceful, witty withdrawal by the wittiest Democrat since Adlai Stevenson...

The name of Jerry Brown of California, the Huck Finn of mystics, is placed in nomination by Cesar Chavez. Small ovation.

It is now 10:57 and the roll call begins and Brown has still not released his delegates to the inevitable.

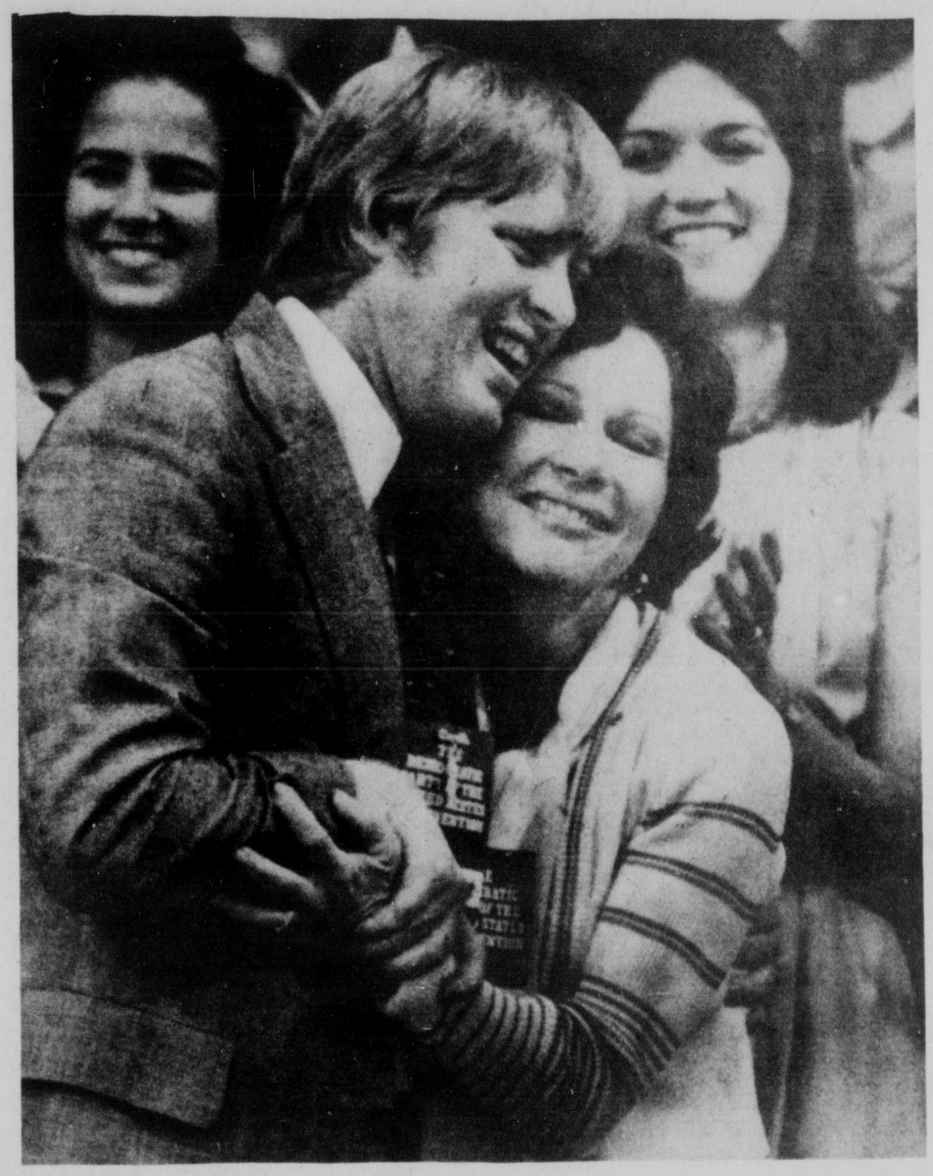

The aisles are more crowded than a Cook County ballot box.

Alabama begins with a long speech about the glories of Alabama and the virtues of George Wallace. The crowd boos the rhetoric. Alabama pushes on. The crowd tries to clap the speaker into silence. Alabama tries again. The chair pleads. Alabama finally votes 30 for Carter, five for Wallace....

"California casts 205 votes for Jerry Brown, 73 for Carter and..."

Mississippi goes for Carter. Among the delegates are a white man named Ross Barnett Jr. and a black man named Charles Evers.

At 11:15, Ohio. "Ohio, in a spirit of love and unity, is proud and honored to cast 132 votes for..." Jimmy Carter is over and the impossible dream is real and the crowd roars and the state banners dance and Carter's campaign manager is raised to the shoulders of a delirious Georgia delegation and "Happy Days Are Here Again" and the South has come back all the way from Appomattox, and for the second time in four years of an unpredictable, changing country a man from nowhere, with no national constituency, no name, no power base or link with the blocs of power, has taken the prize right out of the hands of the party establishment.

Their man won

School aid revision termed unsatisfactory

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A suggested revision in the method of calculating the distribution of state aid to public schools does not meet the legal requirements of the complex distribution formula, according to Atty. Gen. John Danforth.

In an opinion issued Wednesday, Danforth said he believes courts would uphold the method currently used by the Department of Education in determining the individual amounts the more than 500 school districts in the state should receive annually. The opinion has no weight of law or court decision.

The opinion was sought by state Rep. Wayne Goode, D-Normandy, and state Sen. Joseph Frappier, R-Florissant. Goode, chairman of the House Education Committee, has tried unsuccessfully for several years to gain acceptance of a revised distribution formula that he claims would be more equitable.

Goode and Frappier backed an application of the formula that would have ended some of the protection given to wealthy school districts.

Department officials say that application of the formula would have reduced state aid to 81 school districts last year, freeing up to nearly $4 million that could have been distributed to less wealthy districts.

But Danforth said the formula is so written that it can only be applied in the manner the department has been applying it. The two lawmakers claim that method has further destroyed the attempts to equalize state aid, which was intended when the formula was enacted.

A provision in the formula guaranteeing rich districts a minimum amount of aid whether they qualify for it or not, however, showed that "true equalization had already been dealt a body blow" by the legislature, Danforth said.

He said the only way to change the current system is through legislation.

Murder-torture case yields guilty verdict

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — A 20-year-old former Job Corps trainee burst into tears at a jury's announcement of her conviction Wednesday in the torture death of a fellow apprentice last Jan. 9.

Judy Rogers of Cape Girardeau, Mo., was one of three young women charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of Sandra Beam, 21, of Ute, Iowa, and the first to go on trial.

Her mother, Mrs. Helen Rogers, had to be carried from the courtroom in a state of collapse after the verdict by the Buchanan County Circuit Court jury. Mrs. Rogers was treated at St. Joseph Hospital.

Judge Fred E. Schoenlaub, who presided over the three-day trial, said Miss Rogers probably would be sentenced Aug. 3. Joseph Scott, her public defender, said he would appeal. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

Miss Beam's beaten, tortured body was found in a St. Joseph apartment rented by one of the defendants, Mrs. Gloria Sowards, 24. She and Karen Sharp, 18, also of St. Joseph, face trial this month.

Jury selection for Miss Sharp's trial was scheduled for today. Mrs. Soward's trial has been postponed until July 22 because of her attorney's illness.

Miss Rogers had pleaded innocent by reason of mental defect, or mental disease.

A defense psychiatrist testified that although she was aware of wrongdoing, she was compelled by environmental and mental factors. A prosecution psychiatrist said she was mentally competent and aware of the wrongfulness of her acts.

The jury foreman, Maurice Shier, said all votes during jury deliberations were unanimous.

Witnesses testified that Miss Rogers and the other women forced Miss Beam to undergo torture for two days and a night. They said she was forced to drink combinations of gin, vodka, shampoo and silver polish. They also said that she was pulled from a chair by her hair and that her head was pounded on the floor.

Two employes at the Job Corps Center in Excelsior Springs, Mo., testified Miss Rogers blamed Miss Beam for an alleged rape in Kansas City, Kan.

"What was done to Sandra Beam itself was not the product of a normal mind," Scott said in his closing argument. "It was the product of a sick and diseased mind, whosever mind it was."

Prosecutor Richard Heider argued that Miss Rogers had knowingly "acted on her own and with others in causing Miss Beam's death," and had bragged about what she had done.

Swindler sentenced

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An Independence, Mo., man has been sentenced to three years probation on a confidence game charge for allegedly taking $12,000 from a 66-year-old retired school teacher he promised to marry.

Wayne Farmer pleaded guilty to the charge in Jackson County Circuit Court. He also faces Kansas charges for allegedly marrying a 56-year-old Shawnee woman and stealing $43,000 from her.

Farmer was arrested in Independence in 1972 after Ohio authorities said he posed as a doctor in Canton, Ohio.

Asked how he got the money from the retired school teacher, Farmer said, "Well, to the best of my recollection, I promised to marry her."

Under the terms of his probation, Farmer must serve 30 days in the Municipal Corrections Institute and pay back the money.

Putting around in Angola

Things not going smoothly in Angola after war's end

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Besides the increasing threat of severe food shortages and a lingering guerrilla war, the new Pepole's Republic of Angola faces racial and tribal unrest that daily grows more desperate.

At the height of the recent trial of white mercenaries, just as the prosecutor was calling for the death penalty, blacks demonstrated in the downtown streets because not enough black Angolans had been appointed to high posts in the Marxist regime proclaimed by the Popular Front faction that won the bloody civil war with the aid of some 15,000 Cuban troops.

The lighter-skinned mesticos, or mixed-blood peoples, are resentful because the newly arrived Cuban civilian administrators have taken over the best jobs in the "middle bureaucracy" just below ministerial rank.

The few remaining white Portuguese, estimated at less than 8,000 in contrast to the 400,000 who ran the country only a year ago, are subject to constant insult and abuse by both the blacks and the mixed blood Angolans, who wonder why they have not inherited the white man's villas and big cars now that colonialism is ended.

Tales of houses being stripped with the occupants standing helplessly by and cars being hijacked in broad daylight are too commonplace.

Many blacks already are squatting in the hillside villas abandoned by the Portuguese who fled to Lisbon. The government has given them 45 days to reoccupy their property or face confiscation, but few have been able to obtain entry visas to come back.

"People power not black power is our strength," proclaim Popular Front posters urging racial unity. But with the capital breaking down little by little every day in a roar of unmuffled exhausts and the cries of people trapped in elevators during the many power failures, the message doesn't come across.

"We were told that when the white imperialists left wages would be higher and prices lower," said Antonio, a Cape Verde Islander who came to fight in the liberation struggle but has since lost faith in the victory.

"But prices are higher and wages are lower and there is only meat three days a week in the market. My wife gets in line at 5 a.m. and comes home at 2 p.m. with one kilo — 2.2 pounds — of pork, all she is allowed. Never beef or eggs."

Famine is gradually encroaching on the capital, for a number of reasons directly connected with the racial and tribal turmoil. More than 60 per cent of the white Portuguese farmers have abandoned their lands, the richest and largest in the southern vegetable-growing belt.

The deep sea fishing boats don't go out anymore because the returning Portuguese fishermen stripped them of their radar, sonar and other navigational aids. No black captains were trained to read the charts of the hazardous deep sea fishing grounds, alive with tuna and red snapper, beyond the reef.

Of the 32 high-speed, ultramodern fishing boats left behind in Luanda's Half Moon Bay, 16 were destroyed in a tidal wave a few months ago because no one could be found to sail them to safer anchorage. Only sardines and other shoal fish show up in the markets.

The Popular Front-run Angolan government, whose main strength is in the Kimbundu tribe, is trying to rally the people to bring in the coffee harvest, the country's most important agricultural export, once valued at a half-billion dollars a year. The plantation workers, mostly members of the northern Bakongo tribe, were the main supporters of the losing faction, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola. It was for this side that the white mercenaries fought.

With the Cubans in charge of the harvest, the government has emptied out the jails and resorted to press gangs to pack off the unemployed in trucks to the plantations because the offered wage of 80 escudos — about $2.40 — a day is scoffed at by the regular hands.

"The Communist union leaders used to lead strikes against the Portuguese when they paid twice that much," said a shipping agent who remembers when 4,000 ships a year called at Luanda as opposed to about one a week these days.

One day recently a big downtown supermarket had only curry powder, dried milk and, ironically, American instant coffee on its shelves, and Danish caviar at 600 escudos — $20 — a jar in the refrigrated show case.

The line four abreast outside was for a tiny tobacco shop around the corner that had cigarettes.

Only one truck was unloading in the huge cargo area of the modern four-story central market. It was bringing a consignment of lettuce which few people could afford.

The few stalls open in the cavernous market building offered radishes, hot African peppers and some already decaying oranges that had not fared well on the tedious journey to the capital by ferry and barge from the lush hinterland.

An American representative of a pharmaceutical house, trying to get his previously thriving Angolan outlet going again, reported that many Western businesses were going bankrupt because black Angolans refused to come back to their old jobs, remaining convinced that the death of colonialism meant a new, rich future was just around the corner.

Ag official contends predictions too high

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois' top agricultural official has accused the Ford administration of over-optimistic crop predictions, saying that that a projected bumper corn crop is threatened by continued drought.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture this week predicted a record corn crop of 6.55 billion bushels this year, 1.26 billion of it in Illinois.

But Robert J. "Pud" Williams, Illinois agriculture director, said Wednesday that the 6.55-billion figure "could be pushed sharply downward if the drought the (Midwest) region is suffering continues."

"While a record corn crop is the kind of thing the USDA likes to report, especially in an election year, it is based on what would happen if everything went well as it did pretty much last year," said Williams.

"But that simply isn't the case now," he added. "The fact is, many states are already in serious trouble and the problem is worsening."

Williams said the critical months for corn production are July and August and "it's just not realistic to predict a record crop when we are off to a bad start..."

Williams said that "every year it seems that about this time the USDA comes out with a report that paints a very rosy picture and that can build false hopes."

"I don't think it helps the farmer, the consumer or the economic stability of the country," said Williams, who is a Midwest rural coordinator for the presidential campaign of Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Williams said that 65 per cent of Illinois farmers reporting to his department say they do not have enough moisture for their crops at this time.

This is the stage of tasseling and pollination for corn, when the crop is fertilized or pollinated, Williams said.

"The plant has to have adequate conditions for this to be successful, so if we don't get the rain and an end to the hot dry winds, corn yields very simply will be reduced," he said.

"Other major grain-producing states in the Midwest report similar or even more precarious situations," he said.

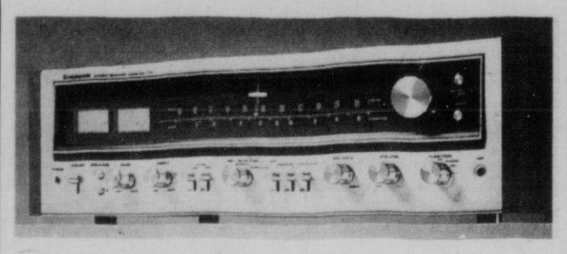

California gets a woman governor

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California had its first Oriental woman governor — for a day — while Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and three other top officials were out of the state.

Secretary of State March Fong Eu took Brown's place Wednesday with the full powers of the office, signed an extradition order and a declaration making the week of July 19 Pet Pride Week.

Brown and the next three state officers in line of succession, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, Senate President Pro Tem James Mills and Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, were out of the state. All but Dymally, who was to return from Nevada Thursday, were at the Democratic National Convention in New York.

OSHA course will be held next week

State Fair Community College, in conjunction with Pioneer Community College, Kansas City, will present a free training seminar on occupational safety and health Monday and Wednesday.

The purpose of the seminar is to assist employers in complying with the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA). The sessions will also help those participating orient themselves to regulations and local working conditions as they relate to OSHA.

Persons who complete the course will receive a certificate from the college. Preregistration is necessary and anyone interested should contact Nila Hibdon at SFCC, 826-7000.

British royalty tour Nova Scotia

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip toured through Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley, stopping in many small communities to the cheers of thousands of spectators.

After a brief visit to neighboring Dartmouth on Wednesday, the couple left by airplane for the Canadian military base at Greenwood, about 100 miles west of here.

Capote fined $165 after guilty plea

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Writer Truman Capote, charged May 30 with driving while intoxicated, has been fined $165 after pleading guilty.

Capote, 51, agreed Tuesday to attend a state rehabilitation program for people who are convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol. The charges stemmed from a two-car wreck in Bridgehampton, where Capote maintains a home. No one was hurt.

The writer's attorney said if Capote had refused to attend the rehabilitation program, his driver's license whould have been automatically revoked.

Competency testing

Once Missouri's public high schools start competency testing, perhaps as early as next April, the diploma may be on its way out as an indicator of what a student knows.

Most states that require competency testing in the basics — and their number is growing all the time — specify that a student must pass the test before getting a high school degree.

The Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, which is currently working up a competency test, does not want to make it a requirement for graduation. The final decision will be up to the State Board of Education this fall.

Under the state plan, the test would be administered at the eighth grade level. Students who did not pass it would be channeled into remedial work and would have another opportunity to take the test in high school. Those who pass the test would receive a "certificate of competence" in addition to their high school degree. Those who didn't pass would receive only the degree upon completion of the 12th grade.

It won't take colleges and prospective employers long to realize that the certificate of competence may well be more meaningful than the high school degree. We don't see why state educators, recognizing this fact, didn't follow the usual practice of making the test a requirement for graduation. That way at least the high school degree would continue to mean something.

But then again, if we really only expect high school graduates to perform, as a minimum, at an eighth-grade level, how much competence are we really talking about?

Welcome Birthright

We are glad to see a reorganized Birthright chapter in Sedalia. This organization is filling an urgently needed role today by counseling women with problem pregnancies.

In contrast to some other agencies, Birthright is guided by a firm belief in the value of human life—specifically the life of the baby the woman is carrying. It makes girls and women aware of the several alternatives to abortion, which too often is thought of as the only solution to unwanted pregnancies.

As the courts continue to deny legal protection to unborn babies, volunteer organizations like Birthright are becoming increasingly important. We are encouraged that the Board of Education expressed such a positive response to the formation of the group, and we hope other Sedalians in positions to help will keep it in mind.

Big sale at the Garden

WASHINGTON—The Democratic Party is holding its super garage sale at Madison Square Garden this week, and there are many items of interest for the collector as well as bargain hunter.

Buchwald

Some of the bargains include:

Sen Hubert Humphrey's acceptance speech as the presidential candidate. The speech, written in February, 1976, is an emotional one, promising to bring all the elements of the party together, and telling why the senator has decided to reluctantly accept the draft of the Democrats to avoid a stalemate in New York. It is 200 pages long and typed, double-spaced, on white paper. It is brand-new and never been used.

A press release from Sen. Teddy Kennedy saying, although he had vowed he would never be candidate for president in 1976, he has never committed himself on being Hubert Humphrey's vice-presidential candidate. He agreed to accept President-elect Humphrey's invitation to serve on the ticket only to prevent a Republican victory and for the good of the party. The press release goes on to state that no deals have been made with President-elect Humphrey for Teddy to be the presidential candidate in 1980, if he agrees to run as vice president this time.

One hundred thousand copies of "The Wit of Henry Jackson." These paperbacks, which the publisher printed in January, are available at 10 cents a copy and are all autographed by Sen. Jackson. They make marvelous gifts for birthdays and other joyful events.

The garage sale is also offering campaign buttons from the primary. There are 700,000 "Fred Harris, the People's Choice" on sale; 200,000 "Milton Shapp, Everyone's Favorite Son," and "Go to Church for Your President" buttons in various barrels.

Other items of interest are photographs of Mo Udall in front of the Lincoln Memorial, and Sarge Shriver standing outside a factory gate shaking hands with a worker in Massachusetts. Because of the heavy demand for them, only one photograph can be sold to each customer.

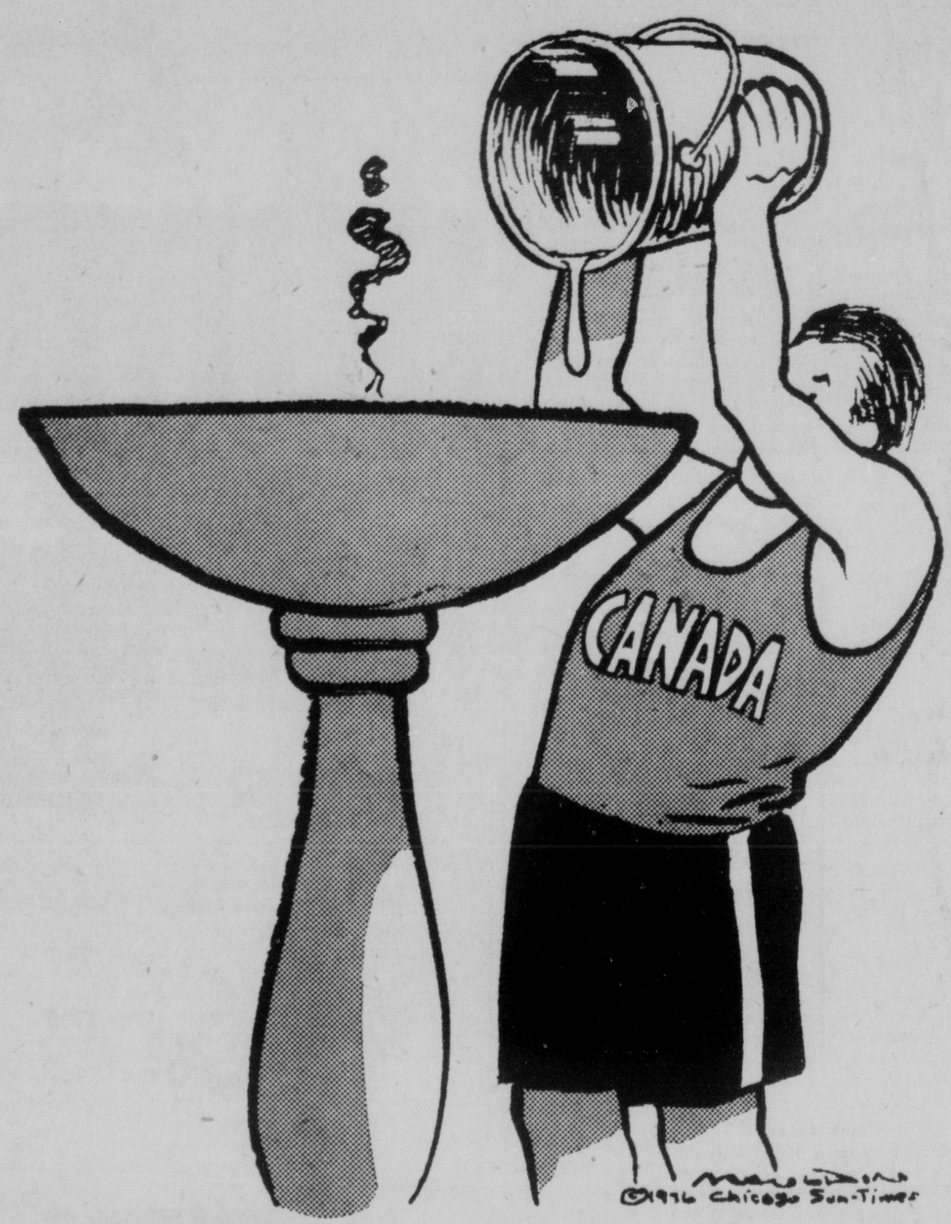

Another item which could go for a big price is the straw mat Gov. Jerry Brown slept on when he campaigned in Maryland and New Jersey.

And still another interesting bit of memorabilia is the china plate with the governor of Maryland's seal on it. This is the very plate that Gov. Marvin Mandel ate crow from before he stood up to endorse Jimmy Carter for President last week in Hershey, Pa.

Sen. Birch Bayh's TV commercials are on sale for $1.50 a minute. He is also offering his endorsements from various labor unions for 50 cents each, which he has now concluded was exactly what they were worth.

Another highlight of the garage sale has been contributed by Democratic congressmen. They are the various reform packages, submitted in the House after the recent sex scandals. Nobody knows what is in the packages, and people will bid on them blindly. The reason they have been put on sale, a congressman told me, is that is the only way they could get them out of the committee.

Merry-go-round

Confident Reagan looking for a VP

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

NEW YORK — While Jimmy Carter was narrowing down his vice presidential choices, members of Ronald Reagan's inner circle drew up their own secret, informal list of vice presidential prospects.

They are confident Reagan will win the Republican presidential nomination next month and will choose a running mate from their list.

The surprise on the list is Ambassador to Britain Anne Armstrong. Even Reagan's most chauvinistic advisers have said they could support the dynamic ambassador. She is one of the three top contenders.

Another hot prospect is Treasury Secretary William Simon, a conservative like Reagan but a loyal supporter of President Ford. Simon also has the respect of the Eastern money establishment. Reagan's inner circle feels that Simon, because of his devotion to Ford, would draw the party together after the President's anticipated defeat.

The third leading contender is William Ruckelshaus, who has served alternately as deputy attorney general, FBI chief and environmental czar. He was a victim of Richard Nixon's notorious "Saturday Night Massacre" which forced out the first special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox. Considered but rejected by the inner circle, barring an unlikely change of heart, are Reagan's able campaign chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and former Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Laxalt has made a highly favorable impression on the people around Reagan. But Laxalt's home state of Nevada is too close to California to make a balanced ticket.

In Connally's case, his "big government" concepts have alarmed some Reagan backers. They also fear the milk scandal and Connally's reputation for wheeling-dealing may taint the ticket, even though he was acquitted of criminal charges.

Down the list are three senators who at least are under consideration by the Reagan strategists. They are Sens. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., a celebrity of the Watergate hearings; William Brock, R-Tenn., an archconservative far to the right of Reagan; and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., a liberal who could broaden the Republican spectrum.

Reagan's own thinking, according to sources close to him, is that he wants a vice president who would carry on his political philosophy.

BURGEONING BUREAUCRACY: The Senate has jumped the gun on Jimmy Carter's campaign promise to streamline the government. In a joint operation, the Senate Commerce and Government Operations committees are studying ways to revamp the burgeoning bureaucracy.

The joint study has already produced evidence that federal agencies can be cut back, that the last four administrations did not usually appoint qualified people to run federal agencies and that regulatory agencies put off important decisions for an unconscionable time.

Carter will learn from the unpublished Senate study, for example, that it took the Food and Drug Administration nearly 11 years to decide how many peanuts should be required in peanut butter. He owns a peanut farm in Georgia.

So far, the study supports Carter's stance against big government. He has bragged that, as Governor of Georgia, he cut 300 state agencies down to 22. But skeptics doubt that he will ever be able to curb the massive federal bureaucracy. They point out that the strongest of Presidents have found themselves but small dogs wagged by a giant bureaucratic tail.

Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., disagree. They ordered the Senate study and are determined to implement it. They will push legislation, based on the study, to make the government more efficient.

To counsel them, the senators have formed a panel of advisers consisting of former agency directors, lawyers and economists. Meanwhile, the Senate inquiry has been divided into these approaches:

(1) To eliminate administrative delays; (2) to end overlapping regulatory functions; (3) to increase public participation in the regulatory process; (4) to insure the independence of federal agencies from political pressures; (5) to upgrade the quality of presidential appointments; (6) to improve congressional oversight; and (7) to determine the necessity of regulations.

Ribicoff kicked off the study with this pledge to his colleagues: "We are prepared to take a hard look at the facts and let the chips fall where they may."

The preliminary findings have confirmed Jimmy Carter's worst fears. After 33 years, for example, the Federal Communications Commission hasn't resolved a single dispute between two broadcasters.

The Interstate Commerce Commission and Civil Aeronautics Board, between them, set regulations which increase consumer costs by a staggering $4 billion to $10 billion a year.

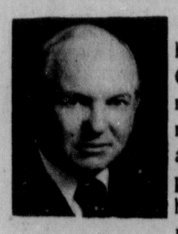

The Federal Aviation Administration failed to order a known defect in the DC-10 airliner corrected, with the tragic result that 344 people were killed in a crash near Paris. And the list goes on.

Conservative view

One on the house for Jimmy Carter

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

NEW YORK — Most of the talk about Jimmy Carter now looks to the future — to Labor Day, to Election Day, even to Inauguration Day. As the curtain falls on the Democratic Convention, it may be useful to take one more look at the past. How did Carter pull it off?

Kilpatrick

Three factors may help to explain the Carter story: the nature of the man, the nature of his opposition, and the nature of his opportunity. With only a handful of exceptions, most of us in the Washington press corps misread all three.

Permit me a personal word. Carter is a liberal Democrat; I am a conservative Whig. Before the hurly-burly's done, I doubtless will be trying to knock his block off. Meanwhile, he is entitled to one free drink on the house. He did an astonishing job.

Carter is an astonishing political figure. On the record of his brilliant campaign, he emerges as a superlative strategist, planner, executive, and administrator. He possesses that keen sense of pace that is built into the brain of the long distance runner. In 35 years of covering politics, I have never met a candidate who worked harder, more single-mindedly, more confidently, than Jimmy Carter of Georgia. He ran the whole field into the ground.

It was Carter's shrewd perception, and our particular blindness, that he saw his opposition clearly. We looked at the roll of prospective candidates and saw the names of national figures — names we were at home with: Humphrey, Muskie, Jackson, Bayh, Bentsen, Udall, Wallace. They seemed a formidable lot.

Carter looked at the same field and saw them disarmed and vulnerable, a collection of has-beens and never-weres. Once Carter was assured that Teddy Kennedy would not make a bid, he had the measure of the others. He knew he could lick any man in the house, and he was right.

At a breakfast press conference last Monday, I asked Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary, for his assessment of the "why" of Carter's victory. He mentioned two or three factors, chiefly the early start. Then Powell added a candid word: "He had a great deal of luck."

Exactly so. If Carter had come on the national stage at any time in the past quarter-century, as a 51-year-old, one-term Southern governor, he never could have won his party's nomination. He would have faced stronger opposition, different political circumstances. It was luck, sheer luck, that gave him the perfect wave at the perfect moment. it was his own skill that permitted him perfectly to catch the wave at its crest and to ride it home.

The man, the opposition, and the opportunity — Carter put it all together. We nagged at him to get specific on the issues. He knew, better than we, that issues were not so important this time around. There were none of the instant catchwords of other years — Korea, civil rights, Vietnam, the draft. There was something else instead — an inchoate desire, out in the broad land, for surcease, for a lower piitch, for a cessation in the shrill and bitter tumult.

Carter had sense enough to understand this. Early on, I watched him make the "love speech" to high school audiences in New Hampshire. Time after time he repeated his simple appeal for a return to those qualities of honesty, decency, compassion, and love that characterize the American ideal. Sophisticated reporters, quickly jaded, used to wince and roll their eyes. Carter knew exactly what he was doing. It was the laying on of hands, the healing touch. The issues could wait.

So, one on the house for the gentleman from Georgia! He ran a long, exhausting, relentless campaign — a clean campaign, singularly free of the words that slash, the blows that wound. He took on the best his party could throw at him. He crumbled some of the toughest cookies in the media. When he tripped, as he tripped on the "ethnic purity" line, he came nimbly to his feet and smoothly glided on. For a truly professional performance, he has earned professional acclaim. It may be the last time, but I cheerfully stand up to applaud.

Lobbying law enforced; 9 charged

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Nine persons have been charged with criminal misdemeanors for alleged violations of the state lobbying law in the first enforcement attempt of the law's 11-year history.

Assistant Cole County Prosecutor Vernon Dawdy filed the complaints in Magistrate Court late Wednesday. The identities of the nine persons were not released pending authorization by Magistrate Randall Waltz.

Conviction of violating the lobbyist registration law carries a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine, a year in jail and a two-year ban on further lobbying activity. Until this year, there had been little or no compliance with the lobbying law since it was enacted in 1965.

Since legislative revisions were adopted last year clarifying the law and beefing up enforcement, compliance has significantly increased.

Dawdy said the nine persons are accused of failing to file required activity reports, which include expenditures made in attempting to influence legislation. The nine missed either the June 14 report covering the final month of the session, he said, or both that report and one due March 31 covering the first three months of the session.

Dawdy, who was specifically hired to enforce the law under the 1975 revisions, said those charged came from a group of "14 to 16" persons his office had under investigation. Several of those persons, he said, have been given until the end of July to comply because their attorneys have advised the prosecutor's office that they are outside the state.

After the June deadline, more than 90 lobbyists had failed to submit required activity reports, according to a check of state Senate records by The Associated Press. A second check Wednesday showed that reports of 21 lobbyists were still not on file with the Senate a month after the legal deadline.

On June 29, Dawdy sent letters to about 75 registered lobbyists advising them they were in violation and would have until July 13 to file the mandatory reports or face possible prosecution.

"We gave them two weeks, then sent them a notice and then gave them another two weeks and two days before filing charges," Dawdy said. He said none of those charged with misdemeanors had been in contact with his office since the letters were sent.

Those letters prompted most of the delinquent lobbyists to submit reports or notices of terminated lobbyist status, some saying they did "not wish to be prosecuted for failure to comply with charges dealing with lobbying."

The delinquent lobbyists reported $14,500 in total expenditures for the final month of the session, more than $9,500 of that for entertainment.

Their expenditures pushed the total for the entire 66 day session to nearly $321,000 spent by about 350 persons. More than $128,000 of that amount, or 40 per cent, went directly for entertainment of the 197 lawmakers, according to the reports. That means an average of $1,945 for each day the legislature was in session this year.

Organizations whose lobbyist files did not include the required activity reports when checked by the AP Wednesday were: The Public School Retirement System of St. Louis, Missouri Funeral Directors Association, Missouri State Teachers Association, Mid-America Gasoline Dealers Association, Missouri Exempt Carriers Association, Loretto-Hilton Theatres in St. Louis, Associated Students of the University of Missouri, American Association of Retired Persons, Women's Political Caucus of Kansas City, Kingdom of Callaway Chamber of Commerce, Sears Roebuck and Co., Amax Lead Co. of Boss, Rose Bridge Music, Inc., of Springfield and the American Mutual Insurance Alliance.

Lobbyists for all those organizations filed registration forms at the beginning of the session last winter, and had not filed any form since then saying they were terminating their status as lobbyists. The law requires any change in status to be filed within one week of the change.

A spokesman for the Public School Retirement System of St. Louis, which had five registered lobbyists, said their reports were submitted six weeks ago, but a check of the Senate records showed they had not been received.

When contacted on Wednesday, an Amax Lead Co. spokesman said their lobbyist, James Shannon, had left the company about Feb. 1.

Officials said Women's Political Caucus lobbyist Rebecca Morris and Associated Students of The University of Missouri lobbyists Thomas Milner had just mailed their reports, while ASUM Lobbyist Johnathan Hicks had yet to sign his.

Big edge for leaders

Baseball: the second half

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Now that the All-Star Game is out of the way, it would be time to resume the pennant races...if there were any.

Major league baseball's four division races are so one-sided at this point that they make Jimmy Carter's race for the Democratic nomination look like it was a cliff-hanger. Unless some of the front-runners collapse and some of the followers pick up the pace, the second half of the 1976 campaign will have them yawning in the aisles before long.

There will be other events, of course, to stir interest. Will San Diego's Randy Jones win 30 games? Will the New York Mets' Dave Kingman hit 61 home runs? Will the Montreal Expos finish the season?

But without a legitimate pennant race or two, baseball could be bad box office over the second half of the season.

At present, the best record in baseball belongs to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phils, often maligned in the past, have steamed out to a 56-25 mark and a whopping 10-game lead over the formerly mighty Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Is the pennant assured or will the 1976 Phils manage a collapse like their 1964 ancestors who dropped 10 straight games over the final two weeks of the season and blew a 6½-game lead?

In the NL West, the world champion Cincinnati Reds are six games ahead of the runnerup Los Angeles Dodgers. The Reds have come through the first half of the season in fine shape despite injuries to second baseman Joe Morgan, catcher Johnny Bench and pitcher Don Gullett. The Reds have started the eight-man lineup that opened the World Series against Boston last October in only 17 games this season, winning 13 of them.

The Reds are 53-33. Last season they were 56-29 at this time.

In the American League, the rebuilt New York Yankees are the only club in the East over .500. They lead the second-place Boston Red Sox by a comfortable 9½ games and, at this point anyway, have nothing to fear but fear itself.

And in the AL West, the Kansas City Royals boast a seven-game lead over the second-place Texas Rangers.

Pro-Am warm-up

Johnny Miller grips his tongue between his teeth as he watches a putt roll toward the cup of the ninth green during the Pro-Am event of the Westchester Classic at the Westchester Country Club in Harrison, N.Y. The putt came up short and Miller settled for a par-5 on the hole. The field was scheduled to open play in this year's tournament Thursday. At stake is a $300,000 purse.

Surgery puts Busby on shelf

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The fight Steve Busby waged to shake off arm trouble and remain a part of the Kansas City Royals this season has been declared officially at an end.

He will undergo surgery next Monday on his right shoulder and the 26-year-old right-hander, once the stalwart of the staff, will be finished for the season.

The loss of Busby, who won 22 games in 1974 and 18 last yar, is a blow to the midsection of Kansas City's American League pennant hopes.

In making the solemn announcement Wednesday, the Royals also said Tony Solaita, reserve first baseman-designated hitter, was going to the California Angels in what general manager Joe Burke called a waiver deal.

Taking their places on the roster will be rookie outfielder Tom Poquette, who went on the disabled list June 22 with a broken cheekbone, and catcher John Wathan, being recalled from Omaha.

Burke said Dr. Robert Kerlan, who will perform the surgery in Los Angeles, had diagnosed Busby's problem as a tear in the rotary cup of the right shoulder.

"Any time you cut into an arm it's serious," said Burke. "We'll know a lot more after Dr. Kerlan cuts into his shoulder, but it is very unlikely he'll be able to come back this year.

"Dr. Kerlan has checked Busby several times. But this is the first time that it has been determined as a tear."

Through the first half of this season the Royals have managed to compile a seven-game lead over Texas in the Western Division with little help from Busby, who struggled to a 3-3 record and 4.40 ERA.

But nevertheless, the stylish righthander, who threw no-hitters in his first two full seasons, was being counted on heavily.

"Actually, it's amazing for us to be ahead with our No. 1 guy not able to pitch," said Manager Whitey Herzog.

"But you have to face facts. Buzz was going the other way.

"We've won without Buzz since I've been here. If Buzz were well I don't know where we'd be now."

Herzog said he would stay with his five-man rotation and indicated that Andy Hassler, a lefty acquired last week from the Angels, might see considerable action.

WHCC ladies day winners

In Wednesday's ladies day play at Walnut Hills Country Club, Marge Cunningham shot a 69 for low net 18-hole honors. Jean Silverman and Emile Zink shared low nine-hole honors with 34's.

In the special play of low scores on the par-three's, four's and five's, the nine-hole winners were Majorie Uhr (8 on the par three's), Mary Frances Heynen (22 on the par four's) and Mary Arnst (20 on the par five's).

Hilda McRoy and Jackie Stockwood tied in the 18-hole division for first place on the par three's with 18 each; Peggy Bond had 32 on the par four's and Maggie Fischer was tops on the par five's with 33.

Next week's play will be minus putts beginning at 8:30a.m.

Baseball owners want more time

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Despite some vocal opposition and a decision to postpone voting on a settlement with the players, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he believes baseball owners will ratify a four-year agreement that would give players freedom of movement.

After meeting for three hours to discuss the package, owners and representatives of the 24 major league clubs unanimously agreed Wednesday to delay a vote on the agreement until next Monday.

A majority of 13 votes is needed for ratification, with at least five from each of the 12-team leagues.

"I would say there was some strong opposition to the agreement, which didn't come as a surprise to me," Kuhn said. "I would say," he added, "that there's sufficient support to ratify."

The vote on the settlement, reached earlier in the week after 13 months of sometimes heated debate between the owners and the union, will be conducted by teletype message.

While details of the settlement have not been disclosed, the main points in the agreement reportedly include: free agency for players after six years in the majors; a limitation of 12 clubs with which a free agent can deal; draft choices as compensation for lost free agents, and an increase of $1.85 million in the owners' annual benefit plan contribution of $8.3 million.

Also, players under contract who do not sign new uniform player contracts after the agreement is approved will be able to play out their options. These players would become free agents at the end of their current contracts.

Under baseball's old reserve system, players were bound to one team unless they were traded, sold or released. The beginning of the end of the reserve clause came when New York arbitrator Peter Seitz ruled that pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally would play out their options.

Two federal courts upheld that decision, despite arguments by owners that baseball would become embroiled in bidding wars and only the richer teams could sign free agents.

Bench will miss series with Expos

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench, troubled the past two seasons by shoulder miseries, is expected to miss the weekend series with Montreal due to a bruise suffered when struck on his right shoulder by a foul tip in Tuesday's All Star Game at Philadelphia.

Manager Sparky Anderson said X rays Wednesday did not reveal anything serious.

"I don't think there was any internal damage," Anderson said.

The shoulder is swollen and painful. Anderson said he had no projection when Bench might be available.

The job will be handled by Bill Plummer who is having one of his finest big league seasons, hitting .305 while appearing in almost a third of the Reds' games.

"It's been an unlucky year for John," said Plummer. "He's taken an awful lot of foul tips back there."

Bench is hitting only .233 with nine homes and 45 runs batted in.

Westchester classic

Biggest PGA purse offered

HARRISON, N.Y. — The largest field ever assembled for a Professional Golfers Association tourney, 169 entries, teed off today in the first round of the $300,000 Westchester Classic.

Sponsors of this 10th edition of the Classic, the richest tourney on the trail, might have been hard put to gather a representative field, what with it coming just one week after the British Open and a week prior to the Canadian Open.

But the PGA lists the Westchester as a Designated Tournament, one in which those players who are listed as designated — mainly specific champions of recent years — must participate or face a fine.

So they were at the 6,603-yard, par-71 West Course of the Westchester Country Club — British Open winner Johnny Miller; Westchester's defending champion, Gene Littler; Canadian Open winner and two-time Westchester winner Jack Nicklaus; plus Masters titlist Ray Floyd, U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, South African Gary Player and Arnold Palmer.

The only notable absentee was Lee Trevino, whose ailing back kept him out of both the U.S. and British Opens.

If any of the pros whose presence was required here didn't like it, they were not saying. A $300,000 purse can do that — even to those who don't have to be here.

Two teams share top trap spot

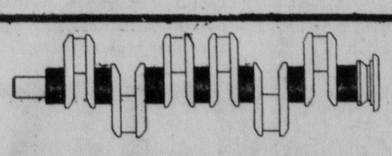

Following Wednesday night's firing in the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club's trap shooting league, the Pit Stop Cafe and the Windsor Review are tied for first place with 701 points apiece.

Two teams are also deadlocked for runner-up honors, Barber's Gun Shop and Lee's Archery, both with 699. Bill Greer Motors rounds out the top five teams with 692.

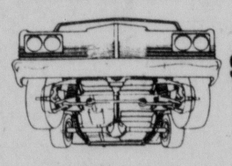

Bob's Body Shop is in sixth with 689, while Western Auto has 687 points for seventh place. Farmers and Merchants Bank and Sedalia Yamaha are tied for eighth with 683 points.

High team honors Wednesday night went to Bob's Body Shop with 111x125. Norman Capps and David Dove shared high gun honors with perfect 25x25's.

What in the world happened to David Paul who competed in last weekend's Amateur Athletic Junior Olympics Region 8 meet in Poplar Bluff, Mo.? Well, with about 350 yards to go in the junior boys division mile, Paul tripped (rather was tripped) and finished fourth with a time of 4:57.0.

The other person involved in the incident was disqualified from the race, but it was too late for Paul, who had set a state age-division record in the Missouri Valley AAU Junior Olympics last month in Lawrence, Kan., where he finished first in the junior division mile.

Eleven-year-old Tim Barnes of Independence, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Barnes formerly of Sedalia, won four gold medals at the recent Manhattan (Kan.) Track Club meet.

Barnes won the 11-12-year-old boys division 100, 220 and 440-yard dash events, and ran one leg on the Independence Track Club's 440-yard relay team, which finished first.

Barnes is reportedly a "rookie runner," and has been a member of the team for only around three months.

Tim is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Smith (maternal), Georgetown, and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Barnes, 1815 East 15th (paternal).

His short career this summer with the ITC has brought him 17 medals, six of which are gold and one of which is a silver.

Sedalia junior boy golfers nearly made a shambles of the regional Insurance Youth Golf Tournament at Marshall's Indian Foothills course. Although golfers from Marshall swept all three spots in the 10-11-year-old division at the tournament over the weekend, Dan Hunley of Sedalia won the 12-13-year-old division and Sedalian Jack Hawkins won the 14-15-year-old class.

Hawkins' division saw two other Sedalia boys finish second and third — Alan Braverman and Dennis Paul respectively.

In the 16-17-year-old division, Bob Stockwood, Sedalia, placed second, and Mark Henage was third. Henage is another Sedalia golfer.

Four qualifiers will advance to the state Insurance Youth Golf Tournament in Columbia July 26-27. The tournament is sponsored nationally by the independent insurance agents across the United States.

"We love drag racing because it gives us a chance to compete against the best in the sport and have a good time," says Lyle Epperson, who, along with Mike Boyles, won the International Hot Rod Association's Formula Stock Championship in a Chevrolet station wagon named "Good Ol' Charlie Brown."

But Epperson's closing remarks in a recent interview done for a promotional ad-news story, probably fits the inflation problem most racer drivers of all breeds are facing right now.

Epperson said, "Drag racing, the way we do it, isn't a sport that's going to make anybody rich, but the fun and excitement we have just can't be measured in terms of dollars and cents.".

With the increased costs on both circle tracks and drag strips, few drivers would disagree with Epperson's quote about getting rich at racing.

If you don't subscribe to the Missouri Conservationist, which is free by the way, you probably won't get a chance to see the July (1976) special issue concerning Missouri's Wildlife Trail, 1700-1976.

The 62-page publication, written by Dan McKinley and Phillip Howell, is packed with the history of activities that affected Missouri's conservation between 1700-1976.

It's the biggest publication that I've ever seen produced by the Missouri Conservationist, and it's certainly well worth the money since it's free.

If you're not a subscriber or you don't know anyone who is, it's worth a trip to the library to read the magazine.

Stags add two more to win list

The Sedalia Stags pushed their West-Central Missouri Fast-pitch Softball League record to 9-3 and 33-19 overall with a doubleheader win over Cole Camp Wednesday night in Housel Park.

Ron Clawson (26-7) pitched an 8-0 shutout for the Stags in the opener. Don Leutjen was charged with the loss.

Bones Harvey won his third game in 11 decisions with a 3-0 blanking of Cole Camp. Edger Schnackenberg was the losing pitcher.

Over Taiwan problem

U.S. threatens Olympic pullout

MONTREAL (AP) — Whose word will be law in Montreal's Olympic Stadium when the Games open Saturday?

"That is our territory," say members of the International Olympic Committee. "We decide what happens there."

But what will the government of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau do if the IOC defies its wishes and has two Taiwanese yachtsmen parading under the name of the Republic of China?

The U.S. Olympic Committee intervened in the dispute and indicated Wednesday it might withdraw its team from the Games if Taiwan's rights are not respected and the Olympic charter is not honored.

The Americans are "seriously considering withdrawing from the Montreal Olympic Games," said Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The Taiwanese, encouraged by the American stand, dug in their heels and said they would not march in the parade under the Olympic flag instead of their own, one compromise plan suggested by the IOC.

The latest ruling by the IOC is that two Taiwanese yachtsmen, already in this country, march in the opening parade under the banner of the Republic of China.

The yachtsmen, brothers named Lim, got around Canada's entry ban because they have dual nationality and have U.S. passports. They have been training at the Olympic yachting center at Kingston, Ont., for two weeks.

Canada refused to allow the rest of Taiwan's team in because they use the name "The Republic of China," which is offensive to Canada's trading partner, Communist China.

Seals given the OK to move to Cleveland

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League announced here early Thursday morning that approval has been given for the transfer of the California Seals to Cleveland, effective immediately.

The announcement was made by NHL vice president Donald Ruck, who said the league's finance committee, acting on behalf of the Board of Governors, had given unanimous approval to the shift.

Mel Swig, the Chairman of the Board for California, will remain as one of the major owners in Cleveland. No nickname was announced for the team and Ruck said he anticipated it would remain a member of the league's Charles Adams Division in the Prince of Wales Conference for the 1976-77 season.

The Cleveland team will play in the new Coliseum, located in Richfield between Cleveland and Dayton. The facility has a seating capacity of approximately 18,000 for hockey — one of the largest in the NHL.

Cleveland had an American Hockey League team for many years and was the home of the Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association until recently. However, the WHA team had trouble drawing and recently announced the sale of its franchise to a group that was moving it to Florida.

Swig, who was unsuccessful in effort to have a new hockey facility built for his team in San Francisco, then decided to move to Ohio.

Commission seeks sales tax passage

By ED VAUGHAN and
JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writers

Missouri voters will get a chance Nov. 2 to implement, through a one-eighth of one per cent sales tax, what the Conservation Department terms "the most important conservation happening of our lifetime."

Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick recently certified petitions that seek a constitutional amendment to finance an expanded conservation program.

The program is called "Design for Conservation." Perhaps you recall reading about it in the August 1975 Missouri Conservationist. It's already on the drawing board. All it needs is a "Yes" concensus Nov. 2.

Briefly, the program covers three areas: land services and management and research.

In the 40 years since Missourians created their own conservation program by initiative, the Conservation Department has achieved many of its goals — restoration of the woodlands by stopping forest fires, the return of deer and turkeys and professional wildlife management.

"But conservation is a different thing today," says Carl Noren, director of the Conservation Department. "We've reached our early goals and now we either stop or we look to the outdoor needs of all the outdoor users."

The initiative stands a good chance for passage because Missourians have historically supported conservation programs and the sales tax is considered by many to be the most favored of all forms of taxation.

Another advantage to the sales tax is that it would relieve the strain placed on hunters and fishermen, who have paid almost the entire cost of all conservation lands and developments in the state, although as much as 70 per cent of the public outdoor facilities are used by people not hunting or fishing.

Missouri's attempt to finance conservation is the first of its kind and is being watched nationally.

Fishing is still tough in the Central Missouri area, with only scattered reports of good catches on various species. Crappie and bass fishing is rated poor to fair in most areas.

COLE CAMP — TURKEY CREEKS: Channel cats in the one to three-pound class are rated good on rod and reel, with best results on night crawlers or stink bait in Turkey Creek. Bass are rated better than average for this time of year on spinner baits, while crappie and white bass are rated poor.

Crappie only fair on minnows in the shallow beds in Cole Camp Creek and white bass fair to good on minnows and trolling. Catfish fair here on worms and stink baits. Bass fishing is poor.

ZORA — IVY BEND: Crappie fair to good as are white bass on minnows in the upper Buffalo Creek arm. All other species poor to fair.

GRAVOIS MILLS: White bass still termed good in this area on 1/8-ounce black jigs fished till 2 or 3 in the morning around gravel bars and underwater points. Bass fishing only fair, but picking up. Catfish good on nightcrawlers, and live bait trotlines. Crappie fishing poor.

SUNRISE BEACH: Small channel and white cats rated good on blood bait. Crappie fair to good on white jigs fished about 10 feet deep. White bass only fair, with largemouths rated poor.

POMME DE TERRE: Good catches of white bass being caught in the evening by both trollers and casters. Several stringers full of 1-and 2-pound white bass caught this week. Crappie fishing poor, with mostly little ones being caught deep.

Largemouth bass rated fair, with best results on big-bladed spinners worked in the coves from 10 p.m. to 1 or 2 in the morning. Channel cats rated good on liver and stink bait.

Big ticket advance for Fidrych Friday

DETROIT (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych's loss in the All-Star game hasn't hurt his power at the gate for the Detroit Tigers.

The rookie sensation with a 9-2 record, who talks to the ball and likes to smooth down the mound at the start of an inning, is scheduled to pitch Friday night against the Oakland A's at Tiger Stadium.

By late Wednesday, the Tigers reported at least 35,000 tickets sold for the game.

The only seats left were a few reserved seats, 4,000 general-admission seats being sold on a reserved basis and the 10,500 bleacher seats where tickets will go on sale at 6 p.m. Friday.

In his two most recent outings, Fidrych has pitched to crowds of more than 50,000 and at the current rate, he will perform before a crowd approaching that size Friday night.

The Tigers will open a four-game home stand against Oakland tonight when they send veteran pitcher Dave Roberts to the mound against the Vida Blue.

Roberts has an 8-8 record and Blue is 7-7 for the season.

After the series with the A's, Detroit goes on the road until July 29.

Tight point race in skeet league

Home Heating holds a one-point lead over Bryant Motors in the tight Sedalia Rod and Gun Club's summer skeet shooting league. Home Heating has 687 points, one more than current runner-up Bryant Motors.

The other four teams in the league, Andy Webb, Central Communications, Sedalia Yamaha and Mode-O-Day all are tied with 685 scores for third place.

Individual honors in Wednesday night's shooting went to Merle Merk and Dr. Cooper each with 24x25's.

Donkey baseball at Green Ridge

GREEN RIDGE — A donkey baseball game, sponsored by the Green Ridge Chamber of Commerce, will be played here at the high school baseball field beginning at 8 p.m. Monday.

Tickets for the event in advance are $1.25; at the gate Monday evening, spectators will be charged $1.50. Tickets are available at the Farmers and Merchants Bank here or from John H. Miller, Sr.

Some space is available between the bleachers for lawn chairs.

Hazel Brown SCC champ

Play in the annual Sedalia Country Club's Women's Eclectic Tournament has been completed, and Hazel Brown's 76 brought her first place in the championship flight.

Mrs. Brown's total in the two-day, individual best ball tournament was five strokes better than Ruth Riney and Jean Routszong, who tied for second-place honors with their identical 81's.

In A-flight, Helen Evans placed first, while Helen McDonald and Marion Temple shared second place. Lou Labus captured B-flight; second place went to Dorothy Labus.

The ostrich is supposed to stick his head in the sand and assume that makes him invisible.

North's pass over West's two spades was an example of what we have called the "Ostrich bid".

As North explained later, he had no defense and passed in the hope that East and West would not go on. Then after East did bid four spades North decided to take the save at five diamonds.

The defense took two spades and shifted to a heart. Later South played ace and a low club from dummy and managed to get out for down two.

Needless to say, South was most unhappy about the whole thing. The fact that he had made a good play in clubs was no consolation at all.

Suppose North had bid three diamonds. East would have gone on to four spades and South would have passed. North would have passed also and his side would wind up with a profit since East just can't make his spade game.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader wants to know if both sides are given a 300-point bonus in progressive bridge if each one has made one game in the course of the round.

The answer is that when progressive bridge is played with both scores counted each side gets the bonus. If you are playing progressive bridge with the net score only counted, the 300-point bonuses cancel one another.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Ann Landers

Okay because everybody does?

Dear Ann Landers: These days, when one hears about cheating and lying and crooks in high places, will you please rerun a column that appeared ten years ago? It had to do with a boy named Johnny and the example his elders had set for him from the early days of his life. I believe it might help a great many parents understand why their kids "went wrong." I've carried that column since 1966, and I'll bet you've added a lot of readers since then. Thanks, Ann. — St. Petersburg Friend

Dear Friend: I know precisely the column you want and here it is, with my thanks for asking.

"IT'S O.K., SON, EVERYBODY DOES IT"

When Johnny was six years old, he was with his father when they were caught speeding. His father handed the officer a five-dollar bill along with his driver's license. "It's O.K., son," his father said as he drove off. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was eight, he attended a family get-together, presided over by Uncle George. All the relatives were instructed on the best techniques for chiseling on their income tax returns. "It's O.K., kid," his uncle said, "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was nine, his mother took him to his first theater production. The box-office man couldn't find any seats until his mother discovered an extra two dollars in her purse. "It's O.K., son," she said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 12, he broke his glasses on the way to school. His Aunt Francine persuaded the insurance company that they had been stolen and they collected $27. "It's O.K., kid," she said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 15, he made right guard on the high school football team. His coach showed him how to block and at the same time grab the opposing tackle by the shirt so the official couldn't see it. "It's O.K., kid," the coach said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 16, he took his first summer job at a supermarket. His assignment was to put the overripe tomatoes in the bottom of the boxes and the good ones on top where they would show. "It's O.K., kid," the manager said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 18, he and his buddy who lived next door applied for college scholarships. Johnny was a marginal student. His neighbor was in the upper ten per cent of his class, but he couldn't play right guard. Johnny made it but his buddy didn't. "It's O.K.," he told himself. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 19, he was approached by an upperclassman who offered him the answers to an exam for ten dollars. "It's O.K.," he told himself. "Everybody does it."

Johnny was caught and sent home in disgrace. "How could you do this to your mother and me?" his father said. "You never learned anything like that at home." His aunt and uncle were also shocked.

If there's one thing the adult world can't stand, it's a kid who cheats . . .

CONFIDENTIAL to Want to Tell All But Should I? No. Telling "all" is not necessarily a sign of honesty. It could be a sign of stupidity. Discretion is the better part of valor.

DAVID MALMO MOTORS, Ltd.

Why Road & Track felt comfortable about picking the Rabbit.

"Remarkable passenger space"

An amazing 87% of the Rabbit's total space is devoted to people and luggage.

Only 13% is stingily allowed to the engine and drive train.

The result? The Rabbit actually has as much head and leg room as some mid-size cars. But space is only one of the areas where Rabbit excels. All of the features of our car — body construction, handling and performance — contribute to a sense of safety and security. We at Volkswagen know that we have to put your mind at rest before you can rest easily on your seat.

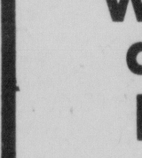

"Best car in the world under $3500"

Based on Road & Track magazine's consideration of hundreds of 1975 cars.

* Suggested 1976 retail price $3,499 East Coast P.O.E. Transportation, local taxes and dealer delivery charges additional. © Volkswagen of America Inc.
